LEGION VOTES PILE UP FOR DOHERTY

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—The American Legion today selected Los Angeles, California, as the city of its 1938 convention.

By JAMES F. McENANEY

(Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—With many new states swinging to his support, Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn, has enough votes to be elected national commander of the American Legion on the first ballot, campaigners for the Greater Boston attorney announced today.

The greatest parade in the history of the Legion over, leaders for the various political candidates settled down to the interminable round of caucuses.

A total of 670 votes is required for election, which will be held tomorrow before noon in the Metropolitan Opera House.

DETROITER FOE

Doherty's strongest opponent is Raymond J. Kelley, Detroit corporation counsel, and as observers asserted that the Woburn candidate was "far in the lead" there came emphatic contradiction from the Detroiter's headquarters.

Stone, Rowe Face New Attack

Sex criminals, convicted as second offenders, would be sentenced to life imprisonment or "permanent incarceration in an appropriate state hospital," under a bill filed today by Representative Charles Miller of Dorchester.

District Court Judges Arthur P. Stone and William G. Rowe, central figures in Governor Hurley's sex crime inquiry, were assailed today by State Senator Joseph A. Langone, Jr., for their part in Howard Long's release from the Bridgewater State Farm in 1935.

Meanwhile, a series of new developments continued to crowd the tragic aftermath of the accused 31-year-old sex slayer's return to society under the terms of probationary agreement. These included:

1—Petitions for removal of the two judges on charges of malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance were filed by Senator Langone with the clerk of the Senate.

2—A bill providing for life imprisonment or permanent incarceration in "an appropriate state hospital" for all second offenders in sex crimes was filed at the State House by Representative Charles Miller of Dorchester.

3—Judges and other officials

Arson Seen In 4 Leominster Fires

LEOMINSTER, Sept. 22 (AP)—Branded by Police Chief George H. Smith as "the work of a firebug," blazes in three factories and a dwelling kept firemen on the jump for five hours today.

Assistant Fire Chief Fred Johnson estimated the total loss at $5000.

The fires occurred at the F. A. Whitney Carriage Company, the George W. Wheelwright Paper Company, the Novelty Comb Company and the unoccupied home of Mrs. Frank Golden.

BOMBS PERIL U.S. CITIZENS IN NANKING

BULLETINS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The United States government today delivered to Japan a second and more vigorous protest against the bombing of Nanking.

This was announced by Secretary Hull, who said the new representation differed from those addressed previously to Tokyo in that it constituted a formal written note to the Japanese foreign minister.

The Secretary asserted that there had been no report yet of damage to American property or injury to American citizens in Nanking.

PARIS, Sept. 22 (AP)—France today followed Britain and the United States in protest to Japan against bombardment of Nanking with danger to foreign lives and property.

TOKIO, Sept. 22 (INS)—Japanese aerial squadrons staged the day's third raid over Nanking this afternoon, newspaper dispatches said. Chinese troop trains were destroyed in Hsiakwan station, said the reports.

By C. YATES McDANIEL

NANKING, Sept. 22 (AP)—Less than 48 hours after British and American protests to the Japanese government against unrestricted bombardment of this capital, more than 50 Japanese airplanes twice rained death and destruction from the skies today, killing, wounding or burning to death more than 200 non-combatant Chinese.

Those killed or injured were mostly those who had been too feeble or helpless to join the exodus into the surrounding countryside.

Dozens of incendiary bombs and high explosives fell into their wretched straw huts in the Hsiakwan slum district, between the walled section of the city and the Yangtze river. The huts burned like match boxes.

Mother Saves 3 From Fire

HAVERHILL, Sept. 22—A mother rescued her seven-month-old son and two of her other children today when a two alarm fire of undetermined origin swept a two-story wooden dwelling in Hilldale avenue, causing damage of $2000.

Mrs. Clifton Parker, occupying the second floor, snatched up her sleeping infant, Warren, and with her two other sons, Clifton, Jr., five and Richard, two, clinging to her dress, ran through smoke-filled hallways to the street.

Mrs. Joseph Lucia, mother of six children, occupant of the first floor, was also driven out.

KU KLUXERS RIDE AGAIN

OPENS DRIVE FOR POWER

THE KLAN RIDES AGAIN!

While the controversy still rages over United States Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black's alleged Klan membership, W. W. Chaplin, staff writer for International News Service, has unearthed full evidence that the hooded order has come back to life in various sections of the United States.

In the first of a series of inside stories about the rebirth of the KKK, Mr. Chaplin presents an exclusive interview with the imperial wizard of the Klan.

By W. W. CHAPLIN

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

ATLANTA, Sept. 22 (INS)—The Ku Klux Klan has been "playing possum" in a secret and so far seemingly successful attempt to rebuild the shattered ramparts of the once powerful invisible empire, its leaders admitted today.

The nation-wide controversy over allegations that United States Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black of Birmingham, Ala., once swore allegiance to the tenets of the Hooded Knights, has torn the veil of secrecy from the Klan's rebirth.

Dr. Hiram W. Evans, the former dentist who is Imperial Wizard of the secret order to which almost every form of bigotry has been charged acknowledged today that the Klan had been growing materially for three years and was now once more in a position of numerical importance.

He asserted that here in Georgia's Fulton County alone 16,000 of the 45,000 registered voters are Klansmen, and he added:

"Fulton County doesn't hold the record, either. Jacksonville, Fla., probably has the best record

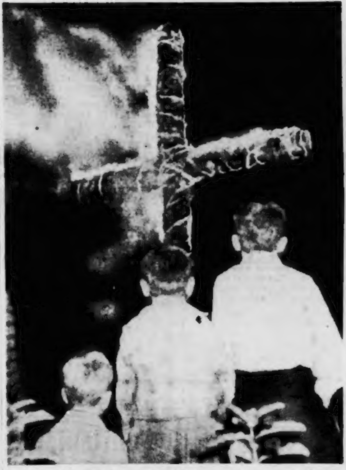
'Columbus Day' Proclaimed by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt today proclaimed October 12 as "Columbus Day," commemorating the anniversary of Christopher Columbus' landing in the new world. The proclamation directed that flags be displayed on all government buildings on that date.

Jobless Census To End by Dec. 1

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP)—John D. Biggers, administrator of the unemployment census, announced after a summer White House conference today President Roosevelt had approved final plans for the voluntary enumeration. He added he expected the count to be completed before December 1.

The Fiery Cross!



Again, as in the old days when bigotry and hatred ruled the inner sanctums of the Ku Klux Klan, the flaming cross burns in its new drive to win back its sinister voice in the affairs of the nation. Here, atop a hill outside York, Pa., more than 300 delegates to the annual "Klorero" there burn the cross. Children are sharing in watching the flames.

Commended for Capture

Patrolman Bortholomew E. Spellman of the Warren avenue station today was commended by Police Commissioner Joseph Timilty for capturing an armed bandit in the South End Sept. 16, after the bandit had held up a shoe store.

BLACK DRAWS WALSH FIRE

WORCESTER, Sept. 22 (AP) — Senator David I. Walsh (D.), of Massachusetts, today declared Justice Hugo L. Black of Alabama, by concealing association with the Ku Klux Klan, had obtained his elevation to the Supreme Court "by deception."

By his silence, Walsh contended, Black had grossly imposed on President Roosevelt and his colleagues, even before his confirmation.

Walsh said any impeachment proceedings would have to originate in the House, and expressed the opinion the most feasable way in which Black could be eliminated would be for the President to obtain his resignation.

DECEPTION CHARGED

"From interviews and correspondence I have had with several Democratic members of the Senate," Walsh told the Associated Press, "I find that practically all of them express the view that Senator Black, by permitting the President to nominate him for the United States Supreme Court, and for the Senate to confirm him without disclosing to the President, or his colleagues in the Senate, his

Ku Klux Klan, Reborn, in New Drive to Win Back Sinister Voice in Politics of the Nation

Imperial Wizard Boasts Strongholds In Key Areas, Including Bay State

for sustained major membership, and the Klan is now strong in every industrial center in the country."

On the ground the organization was a secret, fraternal order, he refused to estimate how closely the from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 present membership approximated Klansmen of the "heyday of the hoods." But in further conversation he spoke vaguely of "hundreds of thousands" and in one apparently unguarded moment mentioned "millions."

Reborn Klan Still Based On Religious Prejudice

The reborn Klan, Evans revealed, is still based on the same tenets of racial and religious prejudice on which it was founded and hopes to win back the sinister voice in national politics it once exercised, before it was publicly disgraced.

He deplored the publicity given the charges against Associate Justice Black because he said it was a "false issue." With a smile he added:

"You'd be surprised to know how many Klan men hold high office."

Wanting to know the present status of the Klan, in view of the interest in it revived by the Black incident I called on Evans in his office in a high granite flatiron building close to the "Five Points," heart of Atlanta's business section.

On the directory in the marble lobby there was no mention of the Klan but at the bottom of one column, almost hidden under the moulding, was the notation in tiny block letters: "Evans, H. W., 749."

Opposite the elevator on the seventh floor was a door with the same name painted on it.

I walked into a cluttered antiroom furnished with a piled desk, a chair and a filing cabinet on which rested three drying lemons and a window display card showing a candy box lady spraying her throat with a lotion called something like "Lovliguzzle."

Nothing could have been imagined less mysterious, less dramatic, less what one might expect from the very nerve center of an "invisible empire" of lurid past and unpredictable future.

But suddenly the door to an adjoining closet room as dark as a cave opened and the wizard himself popped blinking into the light.

He is a paunchy man of middle height, fat of face and small of eye, with that scant hair which is neither blond nor gray. He was in his shirt sleeves and with rumpled grey trousers his costume gave no slight suggestion of ornate and mysterious regalia.

He grinned and said:

"I haven't been feeling well and was lying down. Come on in. Glad to talk to you. Tell you everything I can under the rules."

As he reclined on a couch in the cave-closet, I groped my way to the only chair by the dim light of a small electric lamp on a bed table. I told him what I wanted to know. He chuckled and replied:

'Nothing Surprising' About Black Membership

"Well, it's too bad about that Black incident. We've been growing steadily since 1934 but we weren't saying anything about it. It was a good steady growth and all spontaneous.

"We haven't a salesman in the the field. I could capitalize this Black incident and jump membership tremendously, but that isn't the kind of membership we want this time.

"I've been trying to give people the idea we were just about extinct, but this Black thing has made us an issue again. As to the Black incident itself, there is nothing surprising about his Klan affiliation, if he had any.

"When the Klan was founded here in 1915 most of the members were young men. They have grown up and as the years passed some heads inevitably rose above the average. That is a law of life. You'd be surprised how many men in high positions joined the Klan."

As Evans talked, his face jovial with unflagging interest in his own words, he occasionally switched off the light and then turned it on again.

It gave an air of mystery and magic to the prosaic scene, as though like a real fairy-tale wizard, he was disappearing and reappearing at will, as if he personally had the power of invisibility he attributed to his "empire."

Of present Klan strength Evans would say nothing definite except as to his county and to mention that Jacksonville was stronger, but of general distribution of Klan strength he asserted:

"We are strong in all industrial cities, certainly so in Florida, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Kansas, Ohio and California."

I am reliably informed that in the North the Klan is especially well organized in Pennsylvania and outlying sections around New York City especially Long Island, Westchester County, and nearby New Jersey suburbs.

At York, Pa., the other day Klansmen from 65 Pennsylvania counties staged a conclave and burned their traditional fiery cross.

Qualifications of Average Klan Member Described

"He must be at least third generation American. He must be white, Christian and Protestant. He must come of people who believe in the Bible and he must retain their belief. He must have been educated in the public schools, but not too much; say perhaps as far as high school."

He said annual dues collected from each member of the re-born Klan range from three to five dollars, a "percentage" of which "goes to the national organization."

Klan regalia consists of hoods and robes, range from six to twenty dollars "depending on quality" and the Klansman's rank.

Evans flatly, but still with a smile only occasionally hidden by that clicking light, refused to accept any responsibility for the floggings, killings and general brutality committed during the Klan's "reign of terror."

Formulating Policies On Labor, Other Issues

He blamed all that on "hoodlums" who he said used robes like those of Klansmen to hide their own identity and throw the blame on the hooded order. Of the organization's present program for promoting the supremacy of white American Christian Protestants he said:

"We work through propaganda. Our ideals are imparted to our members who go out and spread them generally in conversation. Their children go to school and talk to other children, who in turn go to their homes and talk to their parents. It's educational."

Although refusing to discuss the present size of the Klan, Dr. Evans asserted that membership figures would be deceptive anyway, because of the Klan "reserve," which would not show on the books. He said:

"You see hundreds of thousands of members dropped out in 1929 and 1930 because they thought our work was done. They resigned or just stopped paying dues.

"But they still hold to the ideals which made them join. So we can depend on them to act with us in any major issue bringing our strength to millions."

Evans declared the Klan is trying to "keep up with the times" by formulating a policy on labor troubles and other national issues. He said:

"I think John L. Lewis is a good man, but foreign elements in his CIO have run away with him. There are too many hyphenated Americans in that organization and their methods must be opposed."

Evans' smile broadened to a grin and his chuckle swelled to a laugh as he told of what he considered his part in defeating Senator Royal S. Copeland for the New York mayoralty nomination. Copeland was prominent in making Klan membership charges against Justice Black.

Evans said:

"I just wouldn't stay out of that. So I announced the Klan would support Copeland for the nomination. The result was that Klan members in New York did support him but another result was that anti-Klan voters withdrew their support and he lost."

I left the Imperial Headquarters to find out more about the reborn Klan than Evans would be willing to reveal.

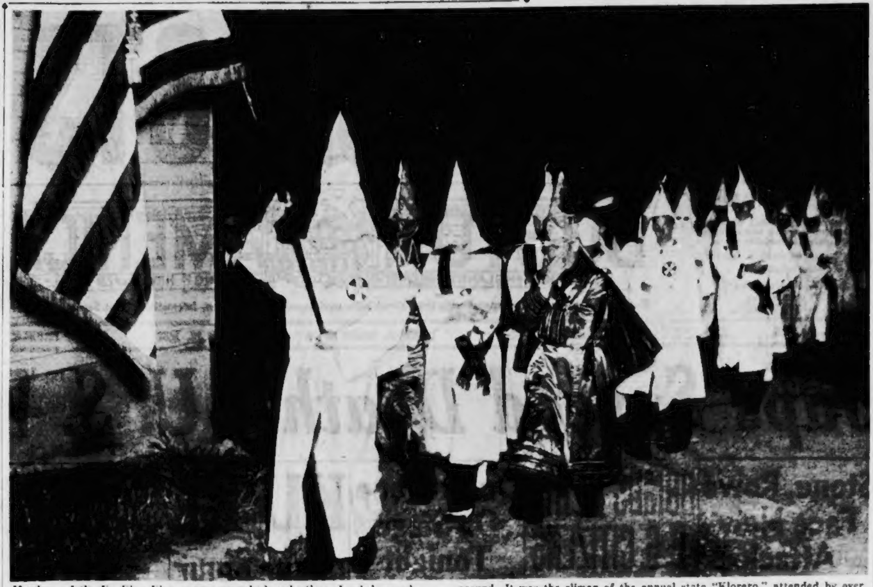
Klan Rides Again

Behind American Flag, They Set Out to Fire Burning Cross



Members of the Ku Klux Klan, some unmasked and others hooded, march behind the American flag from convention headquarters to the field outside the city limits of York, Pa. There they burned a large cross visible for miles around. It was the climax of the annual state "Klorero," attended by over 300 delegates, and another evidence of the revival of the hooded order.

Open War on R. I. Sex Cases

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 22—Declaring it the duty of every public official to try to stamp out the wave of sex crimes, Judge Patrick P. Curran in superior court here today sentenced John Slater, 25, to five years in State Prison for an attack on a 12-year-old girl.

Slater, who was under parole on a deferred sentence when he is alleged to have attacked the child, was given a three-months sentence in the district court and was taken before Judge Curran for violation of the deferred sentence.

Maine Judge Deals Out Long Term in Sex Case

ELLSWORTH, Me., Sept. 21—"Sex crimes are becoming far too prevalent throughout the nation and I intend to do my share in curbing them by putting the offenders out of circulation for a long period of time."

This was spoken from the superior court bench here today by Judge William H. Fisher as he suited action to word by sentencing Luther Mann, Bar Harbor, to five to ten years in state prison on a serious sex charge involving his 13-year-old sister-in-law. Judge Fisher added:

"To those with perverted inclinations I hope this sentence and this statement will serve as warning."

Girl Violinist Wins Post In Orchestra

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22 (AP)—A telegraphed "Okay" from Dr. Otto Klemperer today made 16-year-old Betty Jane Atkinson of Tarentum, Pa., perhaps the youngest regular violinist with a major symphony orchestra in the United States.

Dr. Klemperer, who will conduct the Pittsburgh symphony this year, approved the substitution of Miss Atkinson for a Philadelphia musician whose radio contracts prevented membership in the Pittsburgh orchestra.

Judges Stone, Rowe Face New Sex Probe Attack

named in Governor Hurley's sweeping order for review of Long's entire parole and probation history were completing their reports of defense. One report has already been received at the Governor's office.

4—In New York, District Attorney William J. Foley, following a two-hour conference with Manhattan District Attorney William O. Dodge, announced he would call on the 1938 Legislature to pass rigid laws to control parolees and sex maniacs.

Judge Stone today defended his appearance as counsel for Long at the time the prisoner successfully petitioned for his release from Bridgewater in 1935.

He flatly denied knowledge of a 1930 court order which directed that Long MUST be sentenced to a SUBSTANTIAL state's prison term as a "dangerous" criminal in the event of his release from the state farm.

Had this order been produced Judge Rowe would never had ordered the prisoner's release in Brockton District Court.

d Judge Stone, who has spurned repeated demands for his resignation, refused to reveal the defense he will outline to the governor. He said:

"In view of the fact the governor has requested me to make a written statement, all the information that I have will be imparted to him in that statement, after which it will more than likely become a public document."

At the governor's office, it was learned that Judge Stone has expressed his willingness to comply with the governor's order.

It was also announced that Dr. Riley H. Guthrie, chief executive officer of Boston Psychopathic Hospital, had transmitted his report to the governor. In this report, the doctor sets forth that Long was examined by Dr. Karl Bowman in November, 1930, and found abnormal.

The report of Dr. Bowman characterizes Long as a "menace to the children of whatever section he may be in."

State Farm Officials Outline Probation Terms

Meanwhile, officials at Bridgewater state farm were also reported putting the finishing touches on their report to the governor. This document will be submitted by Superintendent James E. Warren.

As an important exhibit, these officials will supply the governor with a letter received by Chief Probation Officer James P. Ramsey.

This letter narrates Long's entire crime history—but makes no mention of the order for his imprisonment after Bridgewater, it was said.

Judge Rowe, also completing his report in the governor's inquiry will inform the chief executive that the imprisoning order against Long was never submitted to him.

In his scorching attack on the two district court judges, Senator Langone declared:

"Officials who are parties to turning sex criminals loose to prey on innocent children should be stripped of all the powers the state has conferred on them."

In view of the rising storm of criticism against Massachusetts authorities for thrice liberating Long, now held by New Hampshire authorities for the murder of two young boys, Langone said:

"This issue will be a bigger one in this community than the appointment by President Roosevelt of the Ku Kluxer Black."

The senator had high praise for Governor Hurley and for the Boston Evening American, which "forced officials to take action."

Governor Hurley has also demanded reports from officials in Chelsea district court, where Long was summarily released on August 28 this year—only 13 days before he is alleged to have brutally murdered 10-year-old Mark Neville Jensen near Laconia, N. H.

In jail in Laconia, Long has also admitted responsibility in the death of Armand Nadeau, 12, whose battered, frozen body was found in an abandoned cellar in Dover, N. H., last December.

Judge Roscoe Walsworth, who placed on file a charge of drunkeness against Long and a girl companion in Chelsea court, was also drafting his defense for submission to the governor.

Today, Judge Walsworth said that at the time of the arraignment he was not told that Long and the girl were from out of the state, nor that Long was married.

Walsh Hits Out at Black

previous membership in the Ku Klux Klan, and by his silence inferentially denying the rumors of his Klan membership, constituted a gross imposition on the President and the Senate and amounted to obtaining his elevation to the United States Supreme Court by deception.

"This group of senators who entertain this view is of the opinion that this is alone sufficient to disqualify Senator Black, irrespective of what he may now or hereafter say or do by way of repudiating the oath which he took when he joined the klan."

COURT MAY ACT

Walsh said that in his opinion the most feasabe way in which Senator Black could be eliminated would be "for the President to demand and obtain Black's resignation."

"There is still one other possibility,' 'the Senator added, namely that the Supreme Court will rule on the question of Black's eligibility."

Wall declared, "It now seems that the real issue in the Black case is not whether he is a member of the Klan or whether he repudiates the Klan openly. There are two counts against him, one, that Black for political advantages joined the Klan, and took the oath of a Klansman and subscribed to its creeds; two, that Black obtained his nomination and confirmation by concealment and thereby deceived the President and his fellow senators, especially the latter, because he had knowledge it was rumored he was a member of the Klan and supporters in the senate denied it."

HINTS AT RESOLVE

Walsh said that probably, after the Senate convened next January, unless Black made some statement, "the senators who claim to be misled will record themselves, through some form of resolution, as opposed to Mister Justice Black's membership on the Supreme Court bench, thereby publicly asserting . . . they were misled and deceived.

"If I understand the temper of many senators," Walsh declared, "they are going to see that their position is made clear and definite and the practical way to do it is to go on record on this issue in the next session of the Congress.

Sex Parley Will Open Tomorrow

750 New England Officials to Meet In Providence

More than 750 officials of the six New England states will join forces in Providence tomorrow in a conference aimed to end abuses of the parole and probation systems that have permitted such sex crimes as the Gilford, N. H., case.

Aroused by revelations made by the Boston Evening American in its investigation of the circumstances preceding the murder of 10-year-old Mark Neville Jensen, the conference will center its attention on this particular type of crime.

Experts in the fields of parole and probation will read papers analyzing the problems confronting authorities; psychiatrists and psychologists will give their views on preventative treatment.

Correctional experts will be heard on the necessity of segregating criminals convicted of degenerate crimes.

MEET FOR THREE DAYS

The conference, which will last for three days, will be directed by Joseph H. Hagan, chief of the Rhode Island division of probation, parole and criminal statistics.

Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles, superintendent of Butler Hospital, Providence, has already been assigned the topic, "The Part that Psychiatry Plays in a Program of Crime Prevention," Hagan announced today.

Because of the Gilford murder and the fact that New England's parole and probation systems are now under fire, Judge Thornton H. Lorimer of the New Hampshire Superior Court will speak on "The Judge's Attitude Toward Probation."

Burt R. Cooper, member of the New Hampshire State Board of Probation, will be heard on "The Layman Looks at Parole."

LYMAN TO SPEAK

Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of Correction in this state, is listed as a speaker on "Community Placement—Are We Using All Assets Available?"

Because of the stress being placed on future prevention of sex crimes, federal experts have also been invited to address the conference.

Among them are L. B. Nichols, administrative assistant to J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, and Myrl Alexander, parole executive of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Chelsea Police Legionnaire Hero

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Sergeant Herbert Hannabury, Chelsea, Mass., policeman, today had combined business with the pleasure of attending the American Legion national convention.

Leaping to the tracks of the Times Square subway station, Hannabury pulled Frances Krasco, of Toledo, to safety a moment before an express train roared into the stop. The woman had fallen into the path of the approaching cars.

Jail Terms Given 3 in N. H. Crimes

KEENE, N. H., Sept. 22—State prison sentences were meted out by Judge Oscar L. Young in Superior Court today to three men convicted of sex crimes.

The men were Perley Jannett, 48, Marlboro, sentenced to three to five years; Kenneth Long, 28, Keene, four to 5 years, and Charles Patro, 68, Troy, three to five years.

Doherty on First Ballot, Convention Prediction

Additional States Swing to Woburn Legionnaire in Race for National Commander; Fight Still On

fidently that Doherty's election seemed assured barring, possibly, a last minute landslide to some other candidate to avoid a deadlock.

The swing to Doherty first came with announcement from his headquarters that Pennsylvania — a strong delegation with 75 votes—had been pledged to the former Massachusetts state commander.

This announcement was not disputed by campaigners of the four other candidates, Lynn U. Stambaugh of Fargo, N. D.; Milo J. Warner of Toledo, O., and Stephen F. Chadwick of Seattle, Wash.

CLAIM NEW SUPPORT

Doherty's supporters also claimed new support from Texas, Maine, Missouri and Vermont.

It was also announced that the powerful New York vote would fall in the Doherty column after its caucus some time today and this is expected to count largely in Doherty's favor.

On the other hand, from Kelley's camp, came word that certain southern and southwestern states, comprising a total of 107 votes, had been definitely committed to the Detroit corporation counsel.

These states, it was stated, were North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Arizona and Oklahoma.

OTHER 3 "IN FIGHT"

Yet the three other candidates—Stambaugh, Chadwick and Warner—still made it known that they were in the election fight "to the finish."

Their supporters hoped that a possible deadlock between Doherty and Kelley might result in a "dark horse" election of one of the trio.

Talk of certain "deals" among candidates started a squabble today emanating at Kelley's headquarters. A spokesman for the Detroit candidate declared:

"I don't believe it. The calibre of the men running for the office of national commander is too high for them to be involved in any political deals."

One report had it that Doherty and two other candidates, Strambaugh and Chadwick, had come to an understanding whereby the two "minor" candidates would throw their support to Doherty in return for his pledge to support their candidacies next year and in 1939.

According to the unconfirmed report, Chadwick would be next year's candidate and Stambaugh in 1939.

TELL OF "CONTACTS"

Observers also pointed out today that Doherty's intensive campaigning throughout the country during the past year "was bringing results." It was stated that Doherty, during these trips, had made powerful contacts.

A delicate note has been injected into the race by the rivalry of Illinois and California, two of the more important states, for next year's convention.

COMPROMISE MOVE

Doherty, it is understood, is attempting a compromise move whereby he may be assured of the support of both factions. His strategy, it was said, is to suport California for 1938 and pledge his influence to carry the meeting to the mid-western state for the next year. This plan was reported acceptable to leaders of the rival groups.

His candidacy also was spurred tremendously by the remarkable showing made by Massachusetts representatives throughout the entire convention activity.

Typical of this was the Bay State delegation in yesterday's monster parade which moved for almost a full day through this teeming metropolis.

Twenty-five thousand Massachusetts men and women marched in the demonstration, a number of exceeded possibly only by California's host and New York's 30,000 loyal Legionnaires.

Today littered streets and weary paraders and watchers still spoke with awe of the gigantic spectacle that exceeded anything ever witnessed here.

GREATEST PARADE

Fifth Avenue, fashionable shopping Mecca of the North American continent, has seen innumerable parades in its history—from the war return to the Lindbergh triumph—but never anything like the magnificent show the Legionnaires put on.

Police estimated that more than 2,000,000 spectators lined Fifth avenue alone as the colorful units followed one another in a seemingly unending line. At 1 a. m. the New York contingent was still marching and the end of the parade was nowhere in sight.

Governor Hurley, participating with the Newspapermen's Post, received a great hand as the Massachusetts outfits, bands blaring and colors flying, swung before the reviewing stand.

For hours on end the Bay State posts and auxiliaries marched in an unbroken line that at one time took more than 50 continuous blocks for their section alone. They were an outstanding part of the 200,000 who took personal part in the thrilling display.

And for the greater number of those in the parade and many in the densely-packed lines of spectators, the unending waves of marchers brought tear-dimmed memories.

For it was down Fifth Avenue in the brave days of '17 that the boys marched on their way "over there." And it was up the same wide thoroughfare 19 years ago that they paraded on their victorious return.

Many, however, who stepped so gallantly in 1917 did not come back to hear the plaudits after November 11, 1918.

Noted News Editor Dies

BALTIMORE, Sept. 22 (AP) — Henry H. Stansbury, 63, one-time general manager of Universal Service, died yesterday after an illness of two years.

Stansbury, who retired in 1932, was in newspaper work for 40 years. He started in Georgia and covered the Spanish-American war for Georgia papers.

In 1917 he went to Washington as correspondent for the New York American and other Hearst papers. From 1924 to 1927 he was managing editor of the Washington Herald.

He is survived by his widow, Lillian; four sons, James A. and Henry H. Stansbury, Jr., of Washington, Edward of New York, and Robert of Herald Harbor, Md.; and two daughters, Mrs. Mary S. Richardson of Hartford, Conn., and Miss Caroline Stansbury of Herald Harbor.

Fear 'Sit-Strike' On Ship at Sea

COLON, Panama, Sept. 22 (AP) —The Panama-Pacific liner California was en route to New York while Captain W. B. Oakley sought to forestall a threatened sit-down strike by members of the engine and deck crews.

The skipper declared he would call for United States naval assistance if the trouble should come to a head on the high seas and that it would be handled as mutiny.

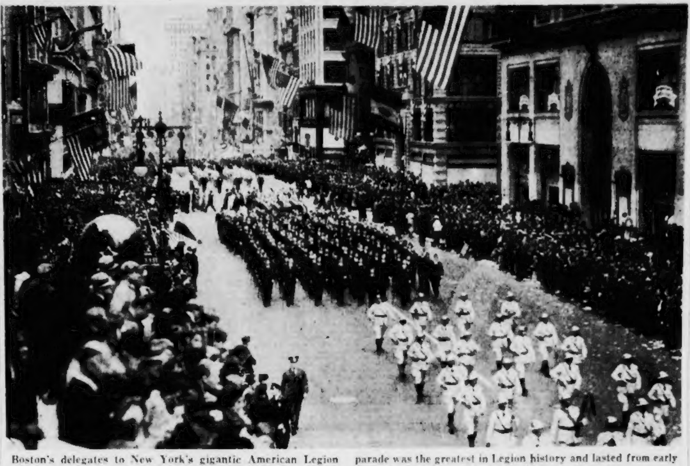
Go Jauntily Between Skyscrapers Of Gotham's Fifth Avenue



Boston's delegates to New York's gigantic American Legion convention parade uniformly between densely-packed throngs along Fifth avenue, led by a smartly-clad bugle corps. The parade was the greatest in Legion history and lasted from early yesterday morning into early this morning.

All Joyous--- But Street Cleaners

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—National Commander Harry W. Colmery said it was "one of the biggest, if not the biggest parade ever staged in the city of New York.

Chief Inspector John J. Seery estimated that close to 2,000,000 persons were jammed along the three-mile route of march. Many of them never got within a block of the parade, but they could hear the music.

Everybody was happy except the street cleaners. They shuffled deep through a blizzard of torn paper, stopping now and then to shove their brooms aimlessly along the gutters.

One unidentified Legionnaire was discovered sitting in an improvised bo'suns chair slung from the top of a flagpole on the public library terrace. The police, after vainly ordering him down, decided to leave him alone.

John Andrews, fresh from war-torn Shanghai, where he is a member of the Frederick Ward Post, complained that New York was noisier and more turbulent than the Chinese city.

The parade ended in a convenient neighborhood—just a few blocks from the Yorkville German quarter, where the bierstuben are plentiful and the enmities of another day are forgotten.

Mayor LaGuardia, a World War flier, appeared in the reviewing stand with his overseas cap on backwards. It was long before he discovered the error and corrected it.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, president of the Girl Scouts, had lunch at her desk at scout headquarters where she was working with other leaders to help police handle the crowds watching the parade.

International News Photograph Service

Cap'n Pine Leads Vets In Oilskins'

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Ear-splitting blasts from a fog horn mounted on a 40-foot fishing boat float in the Gloucester unit's section of the parade drew applause from spectators. Perched on the vessel was Captain Ben Pine, whose fellow Legionnaires wore yellow oilskins in true nautical fashion.

New York welcomed the Legionnaires with open arms, but Fifth avenue store owners took ample means to protect their properties. A holiday was declared as all stores on the avenue closed for the day and huge board structures protected most windows from the press.

William Cheetham, 81, of Springfield, stepped with the best of them, and was still going strong after two miles of marching. He is the oldest Legionnaire in the United States.

The sun shone brightly, but it looked like a blizzard as torn ticker tape, decimated phone books and an avalanche of miscellaneous paper and confetti floated from skyscraper windows during the parade.

Contrasting with the hurly burly on the streets, a fleet of Army bombers wheeled over the city in stately maneuvers.

Immediately following the Bay State division—one of the three largest in the parade—came the lengthy Pennsylvania delegation, about the same size. The two divisions took more than five hours to pass the reviewing stand.

Garbed in blue blouses and red skirts, the Clara Graves Cadets of Hampden received an ovation as they passed the mobs at the sidelines. Marching in perfect order, they gave ample evidence of the form that won them the State women's drill team championship.

Legion Vets Hear Hines In Call for 'Tolerance'

Delegates Weary After Parade Gather In Metropolitan Opera House For Business Session

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Tolerance towards new ideas was urged upon the American Legion today by Brigadier-General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs and one of the principal speakers at the day's session of the 19th annual convention.

"We must remain young in mind and spirit through the full and fair exchange of ideas and by practicing the tolerance of new ones, but ever pointing with pride to the faith we have kept with the fathers of this, the greatest nation on earth," General Hines said.

The 1939 delegates the general addressed were weary, extremely weary, after their 17½-hour parade yesterday, and it was a full hour after the scheduled opening before the session got under way in the great Metropolitan Opera House, to which the business meeting had been transferred from Madison Square Garden.

Standing on the stage where once Caruso and Scotti and Farrar sung, National Commander Harry W. Colmery called the convention to order at 10:14 a. m. National chaplain, the Rev. Bryan H. Keathley, offered the invocation.

The colors were brought to the stage and saluted by the delegates, ranged through the orchestra pit, the "Diamond Horseshoe," the Dress Circle and on up to the topmost gallery. The Cape May County (N. J.) band, which had been playing against a badly wrinkled Roman interior backdrop, was replaced by the San Gabriel, (Calif.) national champion drum and bugle corps.

Colmery asked the men to give the boys a hand, and when the applause died away introduced General Hines.

"You are the kind of citizens always needed to lead our people into proper channels and safeguard our democratic institutions from any disruptive force inimical to our ideals, and which today appear to present a growing threat to world peace," the General said.

He told the legionnaires "many conditions signify that unemployment among veterans has been materially reduced during the past year" because of the "intelligent functioning of governmental agencies" and through the efforts of the Legion.

Terms Veterans Leaders in Fight for Democracy

The general told of the progress in federal aid for veterans in the past fifteen years.

"At the time of my appointment, the Veterans Bureau was operating under the war risk insurance act, and little more than a year later the World War veterans act was passed," he said. "At that time some 183,000 veterans were in receipt of disability compensation, and 81 per cent of these were rated on a temporary basis.

"Today we have more than 355,000 veterans in receipt of disability compensation, and 81 per cent of these are rated on a permanent basis rather than temporary."

Moreover, he said, some 41,000 veterans are in receipt of compensation because of permanent and total disability not of service origin. And in addition to these, there are more than 180,000 dependents for whom death compensation is being paid, he said.

"This is almost twice the number of dependents who were in receipt of death benefits 15 years ago when the number of dependents then benefitting was 78,234," General Hines said.

In the matter of hospital beds available for veterans, he said, the number has grown from 15,400 to 70,600 under the veterans administration.

The next speaker, Harry E. Ransom, chef de chemin de fer, "40 and 8," praised New York, praised the "40 and 8," and roared "Thank God for the roughnecks!"

Scattered applause sounded through the house.

It was apparent, as the session wore on, that the rule against smoking in the "Met" was irking the legionnaires. Now and then a match flared—the men had a taste of this same thing on transports at night—blue smoke curled upwards, and one of the numerous sergeants-at-arms swiftly advanced upon the smoker.

Legion's Stand for Peace Warmly Praised by Green

By International News Service

The United States should follow a policy of strict neutrality and maintain its strength and standing by developing adequate national defenses to supplement its neutrality act, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told the Legion delegates at the Metropolitan Opera House session.

"Great diligence and care should be exercised by those in authority in order to prevent the development of even a slight incident which might tend to draw our nation into war," Green said.

"It has always been gratifying to read the repeated pronouncements of the American Legion upon the subject of peace and in opposition to war. We welcome all thoughts and expressions in favor of peace with national honor and dignity."

Referring to what he called the activities of subversive forces who are attempting to overthrow the American form of government, the labor chieftain stated the Legion and the Federation stand united "in opposition to their policies and will always stand as a barrier to their advance."

"We are the champions and defenders of our American form of government, its traditions and its heritage of free speech, free assemblage, freedom of the press and freedom of religion," the speaker said.

"We all view with feelings of deep concern the extensive military preparations which are taking place in European countries and the war which is taking place in the Far East. It is a matter of common knowledge that military and war preparations have gone forward in European countries until they are greater than they were at the beginning of the World War."

'It's Just Like 1918, Buddy!'

Another shot of Boston's emissaries to the "greatest" of Legion conventions, shows the Bay State veterans moving along the parade route. The occasion brought many a legionnaire memories of the 1918 "victory march." Note women's auxiliary unit in background.

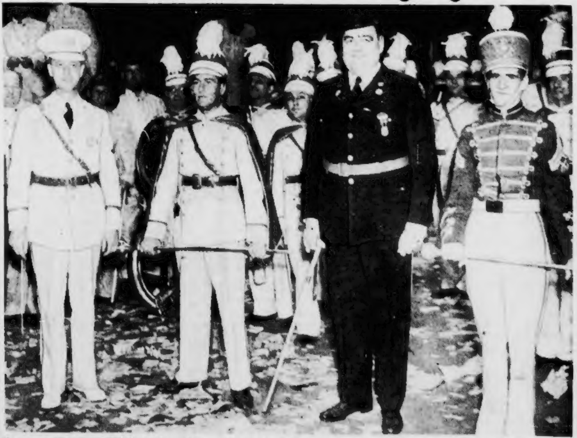
Chief Waits Starting Signal



Governor Hurley, "Chief Legionnaire of Massachusetts," waits anxiously in the midst of his Bay State retinue to commence the long trek up Fifth avenue. He marched to the reviewing stand and then took his place of honor to watch the rest of the marchers.

By FRANK K. REILLY

Former Governor James M. Curley continued to top the ticket in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser mayoralty straw poll and District Attorney William J. Foley remained in second place today.

Former Representative Alfred Santosuosso of Hyde Park increased his lead over School Committeeman Maurice J. Tobin, who made a poor showing in today's tabulation.

Former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols went into fifth place today as he outdistanced President John I. Fitzgerald of the Boston City Council.

4 OTHERS IN FIELD

The four remaining candidates who have filed nomination papers with the municipal election commission received a light vote today.

They are Charles L. Manser, Back Bay Republican; former State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook, also a Republican; Carleton L. Brett of Dorchester, who claims support of the Social Justice group, and Otis Archer Hood of Back Bay, the Communist candidate.

Supporters of former Governor Curley met at the Parker House and at Hotel Brunswick last night to arrange for an immediate drive for registration of voters.

Boston's present registration is approximately 325,000 as contrasted with a total of 352,000 for the state election last November.

Officials of the municipal election commission announced last night that registration booths will be opened in the wards of the city on September 30.

DAILY AT ANNEX

Citizens may enroll in the meantime at City Hall Annex during the hours of 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily and from 9 a. m. until noon on Saturday. All registration closes on October 14.

Unbiased observers are of the opinion that two of the mayoralty candidates are using poor judgment in permitting men prominently associated with them to take active interest in the campaign for election of a successor to the late Dr. Charles E. Mackey of the Boston School Committee.

The election is for a two-year term. Divided allegiance of men who have already become prominent in the political groups of these two candidates is expected to embarrass them both.

Friends of District Attorney William J. Foley, aware of the situation, have publicly announced that no person associated with them politically is a candidate for the Mackey vacancy.

Ten men are now officially candidates for mayor. With the field now narrowed from the original figure of 17 contenders, and with the public now aware of the names of those for whom they may vote on November 2, barring withdrawals, increased interest can be expected in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser mayoralty poll.

All readers are invited to mail their ballots today. The sole purpose of this tabulation is to determine the true strength of each of the candidates. Mail your ballot to the offices of these newspapers today.

Bombs Peril Americans

nevertheless was sickened at the sight of women, children and old men, already burned to death or beyond aid.

In many places heaps of dismembered legs, arms and heads were seen.

The odor of burning bodies was nauseating.

The lives of 20 Americans, including seven women, were endangered by the bombardments and the screen of fire raised by Chinese anti-aircraft batteries against the raiders.

Despite the American and British protests against bombardment of civilian populations and private property, the most densely populated section of the city was attacked, including the new residential district where the American, Italian, German and Netherlands embassies or legations are situated, and also the homes of virtually all American and foreign residents.

ENVOY AT EMBASSY

Chinese claimed to have brought down four of the Japanese raiders.

Despite the raids, United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and his staff returned tonight to the embassy from the American patrol boat Luzon, aboard which they had taken refuge since Tuesday.

Johnson indicated he is ready to remain in the capital. The American embassy barely escaped being hit today.

Roosevelt Off Today

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt ordered his heavy clothes packed today for a whirlwind two-weeks tour to Seattle and back to find out among other things what the country is thinking about administration objectives.

His 10-car special train, equipped with public address apparatus, was ordered to be ready to depart around 5 p. m. (E. D. T.).

Mrs. Roosevelt, a staff of White House secretarial aides, and a score of newspapermen were to accompany him on the trip, which will end either in Washington or Hyde Park October 6 after appearances and informal talks in eight northwestern and middle western states.

Bare 14 Notes in Balm Suit

WORCESTER, Sept. 22—Admission of 14 "communications," understood to be letters written from Florida and Georgia, was asked today by counsel for George Costel, local merchant, in his $50,000 alienation of affections suit against George B. Nash, candy manufacturer.

In the suit, Costel charges Nash with alienating the affections of Mrs. Anna Costel over a period of six years and inducing her to leave home for long periods of time.

Yesterday, in answer to interrogatories, Costel asserted that worry over the loss of his wife's love made him cross-eyed and nearly drove him to insanity.

In today's petition for admission of the letters, it is set forth they were written by Nash to Mrs. Costel, but addressed to Miss Ann Peterson at Worcester General Delivery.

Brown Hails Bruening

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 22 (AP)—Dr. Heinrich Breuing, former chancellor of Germany, was given an honorary doctor of laws degree today by Brown University, on the opening of its 173rd academic year.

Cited by President Henry M. Wriston as a "scholar and patriot," Dr. Breuning was described as "unspoiled by success, undaunted by adversity."

In his first address before an opening assembly at Brown, President Wriston said respect for the principles of the Constitution was so slender "that now an effort is being made to persuade us that we must choose . . . between Communism upon the one hand and Nazism or Fascism upon the other.

"Let the answer be," he concluded, "we will choose neither, for neither is adapted to the genius of this people . . . neither sets at the center the individual, his rights, his powers, his growth, his enfranchisement."

G.O.P. Not to Name Hilles' Successor

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP)—The Republican State Executive Committee decided early today to defer indefinitely the selection of a successor to Charles D. Hilles as Republican national committeeman from New York after several hours' consideration of numerous candidates.

Train Wreck Kills 24

BUCHAREST, Sept. 22 (INS)—Twenty-four persons were killed and 40 injured today when a fast freight train collided with a passenger train at Cincea in Transylvania. There were no foreigners among the casualties.

School Men Lashed by Sullivan

Asks Board Members To Explain Acts in Election Race

First hostilities in the campaign for election to the Boston School Committee occurred today when Joseph G. Sullivan of Roxbury, member of the Suffolk County Apportionment Board, demanded that two present incumbents seeking re-election either defend their administrations or withdraw from the contest.

Sullivan directed his attack at Dr. Joseph V. Lyons and Chairman Frederick R. Sullivan of the committee.

Sullivan indicated he will demand a full-explanation from both men of the events which led up to the difficulties in 1935 resulting in the arrest and imprisonment of two men alleged to have frequented the offices of the committee.

Ten candidates for mayor, 157 candidates for the 22 available places on the City Council, and a total of 17 School Committee aspirants will go on the ballot in November, unless there are withdrawals.

In addition to Joseph E. Sullivan, Dr. Lyons, and Chairman Sullivan there are seven other candidates for the four-year full-term in the School Committee.

They are Joseph Lee of West End Frank L. Orfanello of Dorchester, Louis Shindler of Dorchester, Joseph M. Ryan of Roxbury, Timothy J. Sullivan of Dorchester, Daniel J. McDevitt of Jamaica Plain and Angelo Morello of West End.

SEVEN SEEK POST

Seven persons seek election to the two-year term in the committee created by the death of Dr. Charles E. Mackey.

They are John C. Flaherty of 472 Ashmont street, Dorchester, Democratic runner-up in the 1935 campaign for election to that body; Miss Josephine Lally of Dorchester, only woman in the contest, who was a member of former Governor Curley's secretarial staff at the State House and who is now an active member of his mayoralty campaign committee; Dr. George L. Gately of East Boston, Joseph White of Jamaica Plain, Edmund J. Walsh of Charlestown, Ernest C. Johnson of Dorchester and John F. Ryan of Roxbury.

France Jails Franco Aide

PARIS, Sept. 22 (INS)—Against a fantastic background of international intrigue, the Spanish civil war produced a new peril to Europe's peace with the jailing in France of Major Juan Troncoso, one of General Francisco Franco's highest aides.

Suspected of directing terroristic activities on French soil, including Sunday's attempted hijacking of the Spanish government submarine C-2, Troncoso was arrested at Hendaye near the frontier and brought secretly to Bayonne.

There he was formally booked and imprisoned, while heavily-armed guards surrounded the jail to balk any violent efforts to rescue him.

BAYONNE, France, Sept. 22 (AP)—The French consul-general at Malaga, according to advices to this Franco-Spanish frontier town today, is being held by Spanish Insurgent authorities—an aftermath to the arrest of Insurgent Major Julian Troncoso in France.

Pope Mourns Nazi Plight

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Germany's religious state at present is "truly deplorable," Pope Pius today told 1500 pilgrims, including hundreds of Germans, a number of Austrians and 350 newlyweds.

The Pope recalled that on a visit to Germany in former years he gained a most favorable impression. These memories now, he said, are "sad memories, because the present is truly deplorable."

To Austrians he observed:

"Your country also is traversing difficult times for religion, but we are confident Austria will remain a faithfully Catholic country in central Europe."

McCormack Hails Colmery's Stand

Congressman John W. McCormack, chairman of the special House committee that investigated Nazism, Communism and other political groups in the United States three years ago, today sent a telegram to Harry M. Colmery, national commander of the American Legion, congratulating him on his address to the Legion.

"Congratulations on your American speech in opposition to Communism, Nazism and Fascism in this country," said the congressman, and went on to suggest that the Legion convention might place itself on record as favoring his legislation now in Congress.

Mendieta Faces Knife in Havana

HAVANA, Sept. 22 (AP)—Former President Carlos Mendieta was reported gravely ill today with anthrax complicated by diabetes. After a medical council at the Mendieta home last night, it was announced an operation would be performed today.

Friends Set to Bail Denhardt Killers

Gift Baby's Father Held

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 22 (AP)—Antonio Ricci, 39, a laborer charged with thrusting his young son into the arms of a WPA office clerk with the command: "You take care of him," pleaded innocent today to an abandonment charge and was held in $1000 for hearing October 1.

Discharged two weeks ago from a WPA sewer project, Ricci allegedly brought his son, Giosuele, 3½, to WPA headquarters on Monday and ran away after leaving the boy with an office worker.

Arrested, he said:

Red Cross to Aid Chinese Branch

Although the American National Red Cross will take no active part in the Chinese-Japanese undeclared war, Frederick C. Munroe, executive director of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter, today stated that contributions for relief in the war zone will be gladly accepted at headquarters.

"The American Red Cross is not contemplating sending a personnel to China, or launching a national campaign for funds," Mr. Munroe said. "However, individuals who wish to make contributions can do so through various Red Cross Chapters and the funds will be forwarded to the Chinese Red Cross."

Self Defense Plea Urged for Three Brothers When They Appear In Court Friday

SHELBYVILLE, Ky., Sept. 22 (INS)—Here in the tobacco country of Old Kentucky, Shelby County today rallied to support the three avenging brothers, each of whom seeks to shoulder full blame for the feud-killing of Brigadier-General Henry Denhardt, former lieutenant governor.

The general—veteran of three wars, former adjutant general, author and lawyer—was shot down by the brothers of beautiful Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, whom he had planned to wed and whom he was accused of murdering on a lonely road last autumn.

One of Mrs. Taylor's brother, Roy Garr, has taken all blame for the feud killing, but the other two, Dr. E. S. Garr and Jack Garr, insist that the "credit" be theirs.

It was evident today that the citizenry feels an almost unanimous sympathy for the three brothers, whatever may be the outcome of their trial for the general's murder.

They were charged formally with murder in warrants sworn out by County Attorney Coleman Wright. They expected to be freed on bail today, with friends standing ready to go as high as $500,000 if it is required. Murder is a bailable offense in Kentucky.

The Garr brothers probably will have to be prosecuted by a special attorney because, according to a reliable informant, Commonwealth Attorney H. B. Kinsolving, Jr., will plead that long friendship with Roy Garr might put him in an embarrassing position.

Fear that General Denhardt was going to beat them "to the draw" will be the self-defense plea of the trio, it was indicated today, although it was found that the general carried a pearl-handled knife as his only weapon.

They pumped seven bullets into Denhardt's body and head late last night only after they saw him make a move "as if he were going to draw a gun," Policeman Jeptha Tracey declared the brothers told him when they surrendered.

Denhardt was to have gone on trial a second time yesterday accused of the murder last Nov. 6, of his fiancee, Mrs. Taylor, beautiful Kentucky widow.

At the courthouse waiting to post bail in any designated amount, were numerous political and civic leaders, friends of the Garrs, headed by William B. Belknap of Goshen, Ky., wealthy gentleman farmer.

While knots of people gathered on the street which witnessed the assassination of Denhardt, the three brothers looked silently out from an upstairs jail window.

Later, to thwart public curiosity, the jailer threw up a bright green blanket so that the Garr brothers might cross the jail corridor without being seen from the outside.

The temper of those on the streets was strangely in contrast with that after the killing of Mrs. Taylor. Then there was the most intense bitterness against Denhardt, whose story of his fiancee's death friends of the widely known Garr family refused to believe.

There was no talk today of violence against the Garr brothers. They apparently had ended the feud they started. There was no evidence of arms among those who walked the streets and no murmurs of revenge.

County Attorney Wright announced the brothers' arraignment would be deferred until next Friday to allow Rodes K. Myers, Denhardt's chief counsel, time to return the general's body to his home town of Bowling Green.

Myers missed assassination himself by only a split second.

As he and the general were returning to a hotel here after a conference with other members of the defense staff, Myers suddenly cried out:

"Look out, general, there's the Garr brothers!"

"You——, you killed our sister!"

Denhardt ran and tried desperately to reach the safety of the hotel. But the fusillade of bullets from the avengers' guns felled him as he ran.

Myers said Dr. Garr then turned toward him and leveled his gun. Myers cried out:

"My God, Doc, don't shoot me."

Another brother ran up, knocked the gun upward and remarked calmly:

"Don't shoot him, he didn't have anything to do with it."

Denhardt's spectacular assassination brought an end to a tempestuous career. The general had retired from public life in law, journalism, the army and politics.

He won his spurs in the Spanish American war and was cited for bravery in the St. Mihiel offensive in the World War. He served for 10 years as prosecutor in Bowling Green and sat on the bench for two terms as Warren County judge.

He served as lieutenant governor from 1923 to 1927 and then in 1931 Governor Ruby Laffoon made him adjutant general.

132-Day "Sit" Ends

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22 (AP)—A 132-day sit-down strike ended yesterday at the Richard H. Oswald hosiery mill. The fifty employes, under an agreement with the owners, evacuated the plant and set up picket lines.

G. O. P. Campaigns For Congress Seats

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Republican party geared its national machinery almost to mid-campaign speed today for the congressional elections of 1938—still more than a year away.

The executive committee of the party will meet tomorrow to discuss holding a mid-term convention or conference. A final decision probably will be made at an extraordinary session later.

Railroads to Shift With Daylight Time

Although railroads operate throughout the year on standard time, virtually all local trains and most through trains will leave an hour earlier starting Sunday, when daylight saving time ends.

The schedule will remain the same as under daylight time in the summer, however. The Boston & Albany 20th Century Limited will leave South Station at 3 p. m. instead of 2 p. m.

Duce Leaves Friday To Pay Hitler Visit

ROME, Sept. 22 (AP)—Premier Mussolini's departure for Germany to visit Chancellor Hitler was set today for Friday evening.

Il Duce will be accompanied by Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, Fascist Party Secretary Achille Starace, popular Culture Minister Dino Alfieri and his private secretary.

Harvard Removes Stumbling Block

Harvard University's 302nd academic year will be a memorable one, students are already predicting.

After seven years, Harvard has replaced the blunt curbings from the end of the sidewalks within Harvard Yard. Now there are gentle inclines and ramps, to prevent the prepossessed student or professor from stumping a scholastic toe.

Award Contract For Subway Work

Indicating an early date for starting construction on the new Huntington avenue subway, the first contract of the construction work had been let today.

The contract for laying new 42-inch water pipes on West Newton street, St. Botolph and Irvington streets, connecting with Huntington avenue at Stuart street, is for $40,000, the material to be supplied by the city, and labor by the WPA.

Benefit Performance at Shubert Attracts Fashionables

By BETTY ALDEN

"IT WAS GRATIFYING . . . most gratifying" . . . were the words which Playwright Laurence Housman put into the mouth of Queen Victoria, to express her pleasure at the celebration which the people of her far flung empire gave in her honor to mark the 50th year of her reign . . .

ELEANOR SWIFT

And we are sure that the prim and proper little old Queen . . . and Helen Hayes whose splendid characterization makes her seem to live again . . . and also the committee for the Free Hospital for Women and Children . . . would have used the same words to express their pleasure at the way Bostonians turned out for the hospital's benefit performance last evening . . .

One hundred years after her succession to the throne, Boston theatergoers gathered at the Shubert Theater last evening to witness the portrayal of scenes from the life of a Queen who represents the very best in staid British tradition . . . and when the final curtain had fallen they came outside the theater to find the street choked with long lines of waiting limousines and taxi cabs . . .

Though by comparison these hundreds of automobiles would have made her lavish jubilee procession look like a display of antique carriages and archaic modes of transportation, Victoria Regina would undoubtedly find this tribute to her memory also "most gratifying" . . .

"This is like a night at the opera" was a frequent remark as friends greeted one another in the crowded lobby between acts . . . for the first large evening charity affair of the fall season caused many hostesses to give formal dinner parties . . . and brought forth a lavish display of formal clothes . . .

Mrs. Edward Taft, chairman of the committee for the affair, wore a beautiful gown of scarlet printed with a meandering design of gray, white and red, as she received congratulations on all sides for her successful undertaking . . . She wore orchids on her cape as did her sister, Mrs. Bartlett Harwood, whose gown and wrap were of gold cloth with sable trimming . . . Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, who also takes an active part in the affairs of the Ladies Aid committee of the Free Hospital, wore an effective gown of satin shading from deep coral at the neckline to shell pink at the hem . . .

Eleanor and Lucille Swift Attend

FRANCIS CHALIFOUX, who has been escorting Eleanor Swift to most of the parties on the North Shore all summer, was once again her escort last evening . . . Eleanor looked pretty festive in black with a white fox cape . . . Her mother, Mrs. George Swift, in a silver and white brocaded satin, and Lucille Swift, sat in another part of the house . . . Mrs. Richard Saltonstall, Jr., wearing a deep red gown with sparkling diamond clips, had seats next to Mrs. Charles A. Porter and her daughter, Isabel . . . and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Emmons found themselves in the midst of a group of young married friends as they made their way down the aisle to their places . . . Mrs. Emmons' simple black satin gown with a long skirt and long tight sleeves was brightened with diamond jewelry and a silver fox cape . . .

All summer we have been noting how popular gray is becoming among the blondes . . . and last evening two blondes wore it very effectively . . . you could almost play checkers on the jacket of Mrs. Jimmie Lawrence, Jr.'s, pale gray gown . . . it is appliqued with inch wide squares of gold kid, and topped off with a silver fox cape for warmth . . . Mrs. Gelston King's gray was simple cut, with a wide belt of gray sequins . . . and bands of the same lustrous trimming around the hem and the slits in the skirt . . .

Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, who can always be counted upon to make a modish appearance, wore a splashy print . . . all colors on a black background, with a short mink cape . . . as she hopped out of a taxi with a North Shore neighbor, Mrs. John Knight Waters (Beatrice Patton) . . . Others up from the shore for the occasion included Kitty Talbot with her brother, Max, Jr. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cochrane, one of the shore's most recent bridal couples . . . Patty Preston was arm in arm with her fiance, Farley Wheelwright, and Dr. James Torbert was with Mrs. Torbert and their two daughters, Anne and Margaret . . . Anne Tuckerman was in a foursome with the Christian Herters, while George Von L. Meyer stopped in the lobby to chat a minute with the Robert Almys . . . Mr. and Mrs. Francis V. Crane, who own the mammoth White Pyrenees dogs, were also present . . . as were Diana Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lombard, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake, Marion Leeson, Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hastings, Mrs. Moses Williams and her daughter, Eleanor . . .

Tufts-Handy Ceremony in November

The regular Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Handy of Akron, Ohio, will turn into a wedding feast this coming November 25 . . . for that is the date chosen by Sally Lou Handy for her marriage to Walter Tufts, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tufts of New York and Yarmouthport . . . formerly of Boston . . .

There is a great deal of Boston interest in the wedding, for Walter's mother is the former Faith Simpkins, sister-in-law of Mrs. Nathaniel Simpkins, and niece of Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Mrs. George Agassiz . . . The future bridegroom is also related to John Lavalle, the famous portrait painter of Boston . . .

Sally Lou was a student at Wellesley College last year, but has given up her collegiate career in favor of marriage . . . She and her future bridegroom have chosen a little house in New Bedford in which to start housekeeping, for Walter is employed in the cotton business there . . . He received his education at Belmont Hill School and Trinity College . . . This past summer, Sally Lou was a house guest of Mrs. Tufts for a few weeks at Yarmouthport . . .

Bostonians at Dance

A number of Bostonians went down to New York for the large ball which was held at Cedar Knoll, Mrs. Margaret Emerson's estate at Sands Point, Long Island, Saturday evening.

The affair was in honor of Mrs. Emerson's debutante daughter, Miss Gloria Baker, who is a half-sister of Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

Among those who attended were Elizabeth Motley, Lucy Saunders, Frances and Sarah Clucas, Lucy and Anne Truesdale, Edna and Marguerite Brokaw, Dorothy Butler, Paige Huidekoper, Hope Bacon, Barbara Eastman, Bettina and Joan Belmont, Alice and Nancy Whitman, Virginia French, Katherine Harriman, Phyllis and Harriett Richard and Beatrice and Hope Proctor.

Her Debut Precedes College Career

MARJORIE V. SPEARE as she made her debut at a luncheon given at the Ritz-Carlton by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palmer Speare of Commonwealth avenue and Wolfeboro, N. H. Miss Speare enters college next week and will be honored at another party during the Christmas vacation.

Jane Dabney Is Bride

Mr. and Mrs. John Pomeroy Dabney, of Winchester, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Jane Dabney, to John Harrison Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jordan of Bramhall, Cheshire, England. The Rev. Vivian T. Pomeroy of Milton performed the ceremony in King's Chapel last Saturday noon. The bride was unattended and her brother, Francis Lewis Dabney of Framingham Center, acted as Mr. Jordan's best man.

Following the ceremony, a small wedding breakfast was given at the Women's Republican Club on Beacon street, by Mrs. Louis K. Snyder of Winchester.

Married Comrades

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 413

I gave an involuntary ejaculation of alarm as Dickey said that we'd better get to New Haven as soon as the Lord would let us.

I had hoped against hope that his masculine point of view would be diametrically opposite to my fears for Ronald.

But he evidently was as alarmed as I over the apparently casual remark in Ronald's letter to Marion that he was "worth more dead than alive" because of the heavy insurance which his stepfather was carrying for him.

WHAT TO DO?

"Don't go haywire!" Dicky said with truly conjugal freedom of speech. "I don't mean that Ronald's going to do the act before we can get there, or anything like that. But I do think that the boy is in a dangerous frame of mind, and the sooner he can be snapped out of it, the better.

"The anointed young fool! Wouldn't you know he'd conjure up something like that? Poor devil! He must be finding out what hell is like."

"I know," I said, inadequately enough. But I found myself too choky with fear to talk much.

"The chief trouble is," he said, "what in the seven hinges of the hot place can we do when we do get there? We can't very well offer him money. The boy's sensitive and proud as the devil. The Lord knows I'd dig down deep to help him out. So would you. So would Harry and Lil, too, much as she fears she may turn into a mother-in-law some day.

"But, of course, it would only be a temporary tide-over. We couldn't think of the responsibility of financing him and Carolyn through college, even if I were able to do it. Sad experience has taught me and you that you can't thrust your hand into other people's lives and run them."

"I suppose you're right," I said, and Dicky stiffened a bit at the doubt in my voice.

"Suppose!" he echoed scornfully. "You tootin' well know I'm right! Don't you!"

"Yes, m'lord," I murmured demurely, as I always do when he gets a bit arrogant.

"That's more like it," he said with a chuckle, and then put the query I was dreading.

"Have you any scheme?"

"No-o," I said, feeling a moral kinship to Sapphira, for the glimmering of a fantastic plan had come to me. But it was one which could not be confided to Ronald, so I was partly within the confines of truth in the answer I had given my husband.

"But there's something I wish I could do," I said, hastily evading his tacit question.

"What's that?" he countered.

WOULD HELP RONALD

"I wish I could manage some way so that Ronald could keep that Derby Day date with Marion, and the one to the Whitney Hall senior dance. It's ridiculous, I know, but I'm sure his having to leave college next year wouldn't be as tragic to him as the breaking off of those engagements."

But when we were upon the last stretch of broad cement road leading to the skyway so beloved of all motorists in a hurry to get to their destination, Dicky surprisingly edged over into the lane nearest the curb, slackened his speed instead of increasing it, and voiced the result of the thoughts which evidently had been revolving in his brain during the drive.

"Have you thought," he asked, "that it might be a good idea for us to go to see Sam Brixton before we talk to Ronald?"

Short Trump Suit

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

North and South both realized that they were about to skate on a thin trump suit.

But they preferred that course to reaching for a minor suit game.

Both sides vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's three club bid was, of course, a very deliberate invitation for North to bid notrump if he could stop the spade suit. When North virtually denied any spade strength by his heart preference, South decided that there would be an excellent play for a major rather than for a minor suit game.

Hence despite the fact that he realized that North could have no more than three hearts, acted on his judgment.

West opened the King and Ace of spades; then, hoping that his own fourth trump would prove embarrassing over declarer, continued with the third spade lead. Obviously, declarer could not afford to ruff this in his own hand, since he might later lose the heart finesse and find a trump distribution of 4-2 against him.

He, therefore ruffed in dummy. Then, since it was vital to retain a trump in dummy, to take care of another spade lead from the opponents if they should stick to that line of defense, declarer led, not the Ace and another heart (as so many players would), but the low heart.

East had to accept his King, and could find no lead that would embarrass the declarer. Accepting West's analysis of the situation, East returned another spade. But the heart Ace that remained in dummy protected declarer from having to use one of his own precious trumps.

Declarer entered his hand with a diamond and drew the outstanding trumps, then could claim the rest of the tricks.

½ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca

Wash, pare, and halve peaches. Combine flour, granulated sugar and tapioca. Spread this on the bottom and sides of an unbaked pie shell. Combine the sour cream and brown sugar and dip each peach section in this mixture in pie shell. After the pie shell is filled, pour the remaining sour cream mixture over the peach sections and place in a preheated oven of 400 degrees. After 15 minutes, reduce temperature to 250 degrees and continue baking for one hour, or until peaches are tender.

This Sour Cream Peach Pie may be served hot or cold. The amounts listed are sufficient to fill an 8½-inch pie pan.

DUTCH APPLE PIE

6 or 8 apples
1 cup sour cream
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon quick cooking tapioca.

Wash, pare, and quarter the apples. Combine the flour and tapioca and pat into the bottom and sides of an unbaked pie shell. Combine cream, sugars and cinnamon. Dip each apple section in this cream mixture, then place in unbaked pastry shell. After pie shell is filled, pour the remaining cream mixture over the apple sections and place in a preheated oven 400 degrees. After 15 minutes, reduce the temperature to 250 degrees and continue baking for one hour, or until the apples are tender.

New Gretna Green Looms On the Front Steps of Nation's Capital

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Hasty weddings usually don't make happy marriages, the nation's lawmakers will tell you.

So: "Wait three days after your application before your marriage license can be issued," is the mandate now issued by a stern Congress to the impatient or the merely reckless lovers of Washington, D. C.

This law was to become effective 30 days after it was signed by the President—and the President has signed.

Three days isn't of course a long period to spend in considering the most important action of your life. And there's a good deal to be said for taking at least that much time, as against leaping into matrimony just by way of winding up an evening party.

We all know that if a party is hilarious enough, the most unlikely man can seem a Robert Taylor, the plainest girl a Greta Garbo.

Love, under such circumstances, can develop in a few minutes: MARRIAGES BE PLANNED IN AS MANY SECONDS.

So, if the marrying machinery is near at hand, nothing is left but to face what are often the pretty sorry realities of the day after.

Consequently, in twisting the legal screws to prevent "gin weddings," or even foolishly thoughtless weddings, everybody in his senses will agree that Congress has done well—

NEW HASTE PARADISE

Except that the law applies to Washington alone!

Seven miles away is the city of Alexandria, which is now preparing to be Washington's Gretna Green, or the Paradise of the happy-go-lucky.

In Alexandria, Virginia, a law prevails that's far from discouraging to those bent on hot-haste marriages.

Even last year, before Washington showed any sign of going Puritan, 1100 couples were married in Alexandria.

Whether or not there's some secret conspiratorial understanding with Reno isn't known, but receiving eloping couples and joining them together in wedlock has admittedly been Alexandria's specialty.

And from now on it is expected that the activities of the marriage license bureau, the justices of the peace and the local clergymen will increase a hundred fold.

In addition to its nearness to the nation's capital, the newest Gretna Green offers advantages that are hard to beat, for couples that don't want to wait and think things over.

No medical examination is required, for instance. A license can be had at any time, and the marriage may take place immediately afterwards. The price of a license is three dollars.

Both persons must be 21 years old. However, licenses can be issued to boys of 17 and girls of 15 if they have their parents' consent. This consent must be in the form of an affidavit, and one of the parents must accompany a minor couple.

WHY THEY ELOPE

There seems no doubt but that love will henceforth make Alexandria one of its chief headquarters.

To many romantic, adventurous girls, there's more glamour in an elopement than there is in a bridal veil, the wedding march and the parental blessing.

Such girls love to believe that their fiances simply can't wait a day longer to marry them, and that the whole affair, however much may be at stake, must be rushed through pell-mell.

And there will probably always be plenty of young couples hot-headed enough to elope as long as elopements are feasible—as long, that is, as there are Gretna Greens.

FATE UNITED THEM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Seeing him every day, we both fell madly in love. He is ten years older than I am, has splendid principles, all but in one respect.

He discovered his wife was unfaithful to him, and has never forgiven her. They live in the same house, but she never appears with him in public.

Fate threw us together, and I have given up everyone for him.

Although I realize fully that he loves me, and knows I love him, I feel that I'm doing wrong as he hasn't left his wife. I can't understand it.

Things have reached the point where I tell him to forget me and forgive his wife.

Do you believe that he will ever get a divorce?

He tells me I am too impatient, but what woman has the patience of Job? WAITING.

DEAR CHILD:

Sometimes a situation, such as you describe, offers a man an untold amount of freedom.

An internationally-known novelist, who died about ten years ago, was separated from his wife, and paid her large sums not to divorce him.

Meantime, he made love right and left, usually getting the heroine for a new book out of every one of these affairs.

I do not say that this gentleman belongs to that wholly unworthy type, but he evidently is satisfied with things as they are.

The question is, how does this affect you?

Self-Made Girl

What Has Happened

Linda Perry, youngest of the five poverty-stricken Perrys, lives with her family in a small frame house in the country near Philadelphia. As the youngest and prettiest, Linda is spoiled by the old French grandmother, whom she adores, and by her older brothers and sisters.

She has no idea of social distinctions and the heartaches that will inevitably be hers when she and her socially prominent friends grow up. The first blow falls when ambitious Mrs. Wagner succeeds in breaking up the friendship of her daughter, Ruth, and Linda. Then Constance Scott, Linda's dearest friend, is sent away to private school.

At 15 Linda knows what loneliness means. But Connie is loyal and, during the summer vacation, makes plans which include Linda. At a country club dance, Linda and tall, dark-eyed Glenn McAllister are attracted to each other. They, Connie, and Glenn's brother, Everett, are together constantly until the boys have to return to school.

Then Mrs. Scott takes Constance to school in France. People whisper that the Scotts are separating. Linda returns to her humdrum existence of school, housework, listening to her brothers, Bert and Lawrie, argue, and caring for sister Claudine's small children while their mother is in the hospital.

Lonely and bored, Linda goes to dances in town and flirts with the boys. Nothing seems to matter—except the infrequent letters from Glenn. One afternoon she reaches home to find that her invalid mother fell and broke her hip and was taken to the hospital.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER NINE

It was nearly two weeks before they brought Mrs. Perry home, weighed down with a heavy cast. Blanche managed a few days from the hospital to get her mother settled, and make plans.

"All I can see," she said, "is to send mama in to live with Claudine until she's able to be up and around again. After she's better, Papa and Linda can manage somehow.

"But for the present she'll have to have someone with her constantly, and we can hardly afford a nurse, after all of the hospital expense and everything."

Tillie Perry lifted a small, wasted hand, brushed her graying hair from her temples. She said nothing. Linda knew what she was thinking. Chester, tired and irritable, Claudine slatternly and shrill.

"No!" Linda said, "No, we can't send mama to Claudine. Claudine has all she can do already, and mama wouldn't be comfortable there. I'll take care of mama—we'll manage beautifully."

"But, child," Blanche said patiently, "who'll stay with her when you're in school?"

"I'm not going back to school!"

Linda to leave school at 16? It was unthinkable. It was fantastic. After the start they'd given her!

But Linda's mind was made up.

"Everyone else has done something. Now I'm going to," she said, but even as she said it, with a glow of pride in her own goodness she knew that it wasn't only because she wanted to do her share at last. It was because, with Constance and Glenn gone, she hated to be a nobody at school.

WHY DID THEY?

Afterwards, looking back on this phase of her life, Linda had her moments of bitter resentment against them all. Why did they let her do such a crazy, quixotic thing? Why didn't they keep her in school at least until she'd finished High? They could have managed some way, there was SOMETHING they could have done!

It's doubtful if she ever fully realized how much stronger her will was, even at 16, than the wills of the others. And who was there to really interfere? Not her father, broken in health, worried about his very livelihood. Not her mother, broken by this last misfortune.

And so began a self-imposed sentence of what Linda afterwards thought of as "two years of hard labor." Trouble came so thick and fast in those two years that neighbors, like Mrs. Minor and the Brophys, who had been happy to send over homemade soups and jellies and discuss "poor Mis' Perry" and all her hard-luck, began to think that it was being carried too far.

Bert lost his job in the first winter. Linda had an abscessed tooth. Mrs. Perry, beginning to drag herself about on crutches, fell again, and injured her spine.

In January Mr. Perry was killed in a freak explosion at the mill, and Bert, who had finally found work again, stepped on a rusty nail, and was laid up for weeks.

DOOMED BY FATE

The hard luck of the Perrys became a sort of grisly, neighborhood joke. Through it all Linda carried on. She'd let her straight black hair grow, because she couldn't get out to get it cut, and it knotted at the back of her neck. Straight and very thin, she tore through the heavy, endless work of cleaning, cooking, washing, ironing, nursing the now helpless invalid.

Every Tuesday and Thursday and Saturday night a young man, the only survivor of the dancing days, came to call, and on nights that Bert consented to stay home and watch their mother, they went out.

The young man's name was George Cooke. He was heavy set, with thin, dark hair, and prominent black eyes. Not a romantic figure, but solid, dependable.

Mrs. Perry approved of George. She began to express the wish to see Linda "settled."

"After I'm gone," she said oftener and oftener. Her sallow skin was waxen now, her eyes shrunken in her head.

But Linda, for all the doctor's hints and Blanche's warnings, refused to face it. They'd had too much. First, Grandma, then Papa; now they talked as if Mama couldn't live. Such a little while ago she'd read of accidents and deaths, as she read of famine in China and the breathing the last of kings.

Things that happened, of course, but not to you. And now they'd all come to her, and she could bear no more.

"Sometimes it pays to—to not hope for too much," Mrs. Perry said guardedly. "Sometimes a girl can go on dreaming about—well, someone like Glenn McAllister. And sometimes there's a real nice young man right near by, that she could have. Like George—"

Linda's mouth twisted in a wry smile. The joke was on her, her mother was right. Two years she'd waited for a sign from Glenn.

Two years she'd poured out her heart to him in letters, and then waited, day after day, week after week, sick with longing for the answers that were further and further apart.

A GOLDEN DREAM

It wasn't his fault that he hadn't come back last summer. Naturally, he'd choose a trip to Alaska with his brother and his father. He'd be crazy if he didn't . . . But she wouldn't have chosen the trip. She'd have given up that trip, and all trips to come, for Glenn . . . And if he cared the same way . . .

She never got anywhere, thinking about it. Glenn McAllister, with a father in Washington, and a college career, and a background of rich relatives, and money and social position, wasn't going to marry a girl like her.

But he HAD loved her, she couldn't be mistaken about that.

And if he weren't pretty interested still he wouldn't go on writing, after two years, even if the letters were few and far apart, and he never, even once, said "I love you!"

Better to have that dream, and wait . . .

And then she'd think of Ruth Wagner's two, dried-up little old maid aunts, still called "the Miller girls," and her fingers would curl back to her palms, cutting them, and she'd think—No!—No!—I couldn't stand that!

Bring Back Skin to Milky Pearliness

Posed by Libby Harben

Do It Gradual, Safe Way

By ARLINE GOULD

IT'S PRETTY hard to relinquish the bronzed glow for which you remained immobile as a statue on hot sands for hours and hours . . . but along with your lipstick and your hats, you've got to change your skin!

Just try on a velvet poke bonnet that might have been tied onto Recamier's lovely, curled head.

We're all for a quick change, but not one quick enough to scare your complexion into a fit of lines and puckers. That's just what a drastic bleach can do, you know—bring on persimmon puckers!

* * *

So we're all for a change that at the same time will feed parched tissues—and there is nothing better under the sun or moon than a cream that's jammed full of buttermilk!

Put off the poke bonnet for another week, hang up the three-yard veil with pink sequin lips embroidered on it.

Give yourself just one week, and you'll be ready to say, "Bring on the Lily Langtry velvet sheaths that demand skin like milky pearls! Bring on the siren veils! This isn't the same girl whose hair was combed by the wind, and who gave up her skin to sun worship only a month ago!"

One of the finest buttermilk creams we've ever run across is going to be available in its regular over-two-dollar size at a dollar, to help this business of face and shoulders looking like "milky pearls" again.

Faintly pink as an autumn dawn, it is very smooth and light, with a hint in its scent and taste (yes, we said taste!) of the tang of buttermilk.

Its this bracing tang that's indicative of the power behind the simple blandness of buttermilk.

And if it's your intention to banish tan the speediest possible way with the greatest benefit to a somewhat tired-out skin, this is what you want!

It is non-fattening and should be patted on the face and neck, then left on overnight.

* * *

If you wish to know about this grand buttermilk cream that's specially priced for only one week phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 6061 weekdays until 5, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

BEAUTY battles are always being fought against the black head . . . tomorrow Arline Gould tells of an easy treatment on a new principle that has the indorsement of physicians.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

BE WELL-FED WHILE YOU DIET

By IDA JEAN KAIN

It's time you knew some of the facts about dieting. Ordinarily, all you ask of a diet is that it will make you thin.

Any diet that is sufficiently low in calories will do that, but what should worry you is whether it will, at the same time, safeguard your health and looks.

When you cut down your food intake, the body does not use fewer calories. Normally, your total energy is supplied by your daily food intake.

In reducing, the source of your energy is changed. The calorie intake is cut so that it provides only a part of the energy you use; the other part is derived from last year's calories which were stored as fatty tissue.

When you draw on your reserve for material other than that used for energy, you are endangering your health.

* * *

There is this to remember: Stored calories are only stored fats and carbohydrates. The body does not store up an effective reserve of vitamins, minerals, and protein.

For this reason it is highly important to base your diet on the protective foods. Otherwise, you rob your teeth for calcium, your body tissues for protein, and thus lower your general vitality.

There is no guesswork about dieting. Excess adipose tissue comes from too many fuel foods, and it is these fuel foods which must be lessened.

There are certain food elements you need in normal amounts even while reducing, but the fuel foods must be restricted if you are to lose weight.

* * *

Food is fuel—our source of energy. This energy, or fuel value, is measured by the calorie, which is the heat unit. Some foods have more fuel, therefore more calories than others.

You gain weight to the extent that the fuel foods in your menu exceed your energy expenditure, conversely, a deficit in the fuel foods brings a loss in weight.

It is plain to be seen that the foods high in fuel are causing your weight troubles. When a food is high in fuel, or energy, it is high in calories . . . or, in everyday language, it's fattening.

Now the important thing to know is which food elements supply the most calories and which foods contain the most of these fattening elements. The energy foods are classed as carbohydrates, protein and fats.

* * *

First, carbohydrates. You should think of all sugars and starches as carbohydrates. This includes sugar and all sweets, breads and cereals. Carbohydrates supply energy to keep you going, but any excess is stored in the body, or is converted into body fat.

Protein is also a fuel food and contains as many calories per ounce as carbohydrates. Besides being an energy food, however, protein is used for repair and is essential in normal amounts in a reducing diet. The complete protein foods are milk, eggs, cheese, meat, fish and fowl.

Fats, which are the foods highest in fuel, are either burned or stored. The foods containing the highest percentage of fat are cream, butter, fat meats, fish and fowl, and oils.

To sum up of these three energy sources, protein in normal amounts is indispensible; carbohydrates can be decreased, and fats can be cut out almost entirely in a scientific reducing diet.

That's the whole story of calories. We will take up each food principle separately so that you will know just what is what about dieting.

Speech Reveals Background

HOW voices carry in these outdoor, open-window days! Easy to tell—from the pronunciation—what kind of person the speaker is! "Hello! We've an eyeDEE-a," says a girl. "A stewPENdus idea," chimes another. "About the athLETIC contest?" asks a man.

You notice they don't say eyeDEER for idea, stuPENjus for stupendous, or ath-a-let-ic for athletic. They must be Lucy, Kit and Don, who are tops with the nicest crowd in the neighborhood.

But now what a contrast! "AwreVORE," a girl says. "I'm nuts about your KOOP, tools. It'll take you anywheres."

That's the nobody of the block. She complains her neighbors are snobs. But if she'd learn to say "o re VWAR" for au revoir, kooPAY for coupe, anywhere without that final "s," she'd find the "snobs" friendly and admiring.

It's so simple to brush up on pronunciation, there's really no excuse for making such slips.

Begin by checking mistakes in little words. Do you wrongly add a "t" to twice, say "twict?" Or do you give two syllables where there should be one; say "fillum" for film?

Sounds hard? It's easy. Our 40-page booklet, WORDS MOST OFTEN MISPRONOUNCED, shows you how to check your blunders, to cultivate quickly the clear, correct speech that wins friends.

Send 15c for our booklet, WORDS MOST OFTEN MISPRONOUNCED, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Healthiest in 2d Decade

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A recent bulletin issued by a life insurance company points out that the second decade of life is the period of best health and a time relatively free from accidents.

During the ages from one to four, influenza and pneumonia are the most common causes of death among children. Certain communicable diseases, the "catching" diseases, come second, and accidents third. This statement should serve as a warning to many who still believe that childhood diseases are rarely serious.

During the period between five years and 19 years of age, accidents take first place. At this time of life, too, tuberculosis becomes a serious factor. It is the chief cause of death between the ages of 20 and 34 years. For individuals from 35 to 40, tuberculosis continues to be the first cause of death, while other diseases, such as heart disease, cancer, influenza and pneumonia begin to take their toll.

Now we reach the so-called "degenerative diseases," which are most prevalent between the ages 45 and 5 These are heart diseases, cancer, influenza and pneumonia, chronic Bright's disease, tuberculosis and cerebral hemorrhage or apoplexy, in order named.

Beauty Hints for You

DO YOUR hands look like autumn leaves? Are they red and "yallery?" They are likely to be after a summer's flirtation with Mr. Sun.

Something must be done, and quickly. Those dingy "mitts" won't look very well with the new evening frock.

Buy soap for blandness and get the best, and remember that even suds from the best soaps must be thoroughly rinsed away.

When drying the hands, don't make a hasty job of it. Be thorough. Pat with the towel, give your fingers a massage now and then. Use lanoline when you do it. It will make the skin smooth. It's wonderfully healing, too, when the flesh is sensitive and rough.

If you are a home girl, don't use harsh powders and cleansing agents when going through the housekeeping routine.

* * *

EGG white makes a splendid face mask. It has astringent qualities. Women whose skins have wrinkled will find it helpful, as will those girls who have oily skins.

* * *

Beat it lightly but not until it is firm. Spread it on a clean skin surface. To remove it, use tepid water freely. Dry the face with gentle pats and tap in a massage cream.

* * *

When doing your beauty duties at bedtime, just after washing the face devote at least five minutes to a brisk tapping of your face. And don't forget the neck. Necks go back on you if you don't take care of them.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

The Brighter Side

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

We are greatly interested in the exploration of Shiva Temple, a plateau in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, one of the major works of nature. The Grand Canyon is more colossal than a movie by Mr. Sam Goldwyn, although, of course, this crack does not go if Mr. Goldwyn hears it.

Damon Runyon

A bunch of explorer scientists are prowling around on Shiva Temple at this time with the idea of finding small animals for the purpose of scientific study. They want to determine what effects, if any, the isolation of from 12,000 to 35,000 years has had in their evolutionary development.

A few mice, and rabbits, are reported as the bag to date. We do not know how the taking of rabbits at this season of the year jibes with the Arizona game laws, but we would advise the scientists to be a little careful on that point. We are pretty sure that on mice they would have done better in our kitchen.

MOSQUITOES EVERYWHERE

Some mosquitoes were also discovered in the general vicinity of Shiva Temple, and this seemed to surprise the scientists no little, indicating that scientists do not keep in touch with worldly affairs.

Otherwise, they would have known that the standard price for many years has been 50 to 1 that you will find mosquitoes wherever you go.

The expedition may strike some of our readers as one of those so what things, but it arouses our spirit of adventure. We would dearly love to journey to far places ourself, and find strange things. We would have been an explorer were it not for the inconveniences of the business.

To be an explorer, you have to have places to explore. These places are almost invariably located in remote districts, difficult of access. They often have mountains, and icebergs, and deserts, and jungles around them.

LOCAL EXPLORING O. K.

We would not mind doing our exploring in some handy place, say, Harlem or Yorkville. As a matter of fact, we understand there still remains work in these regions for intrepid explorers. It is that traveling 'way, 'way off to explore that dampens our spirit.

Our idea of a properly equipped exploring expedition would be one that included the Colony chef, stall showers, Mr. Sam Rosoff's buses, and good roads like the Dixie Highway, or Route 9. And we consider the whiskers that explorers wear utterly repugnant, and wholly unnecessary.

We once thought some of exploring the Everglades, down in Florida. A fellow was telling us that he knew of a lost city of the Spaniards that undoubtedly contained vast treasure, though he did not explain how the city could be lost if he knew of it.

We said we doted on treasure, and would gladly undertake the trip with him, if it were not attended by inconvenience.

He pointed out that the Orange Blossom Special runs to a point not far from the Evergades, and we were all ready to become an explorer when we learned that there would be walking to be done after leaving the train, and that under no circumstances could the club car accompany us.

WALKING A HANDICAP

We gave up all thought of the exploration. We are not opposed to walking as a form of mild exercise, but we do not favor it is a means of getting somewhere. If we had to do much walking as an explorer, we would be so tired out that we would not have strength enough left to do any exploring after reaching a place to explore.

Another thing that has restrained our impulse to become an explorer is our innate sense of privacy, especially the privacy of others.

We have always felt that the inhabitants of unexplored places might not like to be explored. An explorer will at once recognize that we lack the fundamental instinct of the true explorer.

The true explorer has no sense of the privacy of others. When he finds an unexplored place, he goes barging in and out of the homes of the inhabitants, their places of business, the tombs of their ancestors, and everywhere else, without as much as a by your leave.

CASE FOR S. P. C. A.

This is odd in view of the fact that we know an explorer who yelled, "Watch, murder, police!" when a lady walked into his New York apartment and caught him in his bathtub.

Of course there are no human inhabitants on Shiva Temple, so nothing we have said in this connection must be taken as applying in that case.

However, we have been wondering if those mice and rabbits that were living on Shiva minding their own business and doing no one any harm, do not have a case for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

It is quite clear that those scientist explorers went out of their way no little to assault these small creatures.

China Aided By Arms Decree

Eases Call for Full Neutrality Act Enforcement

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—Washington was pained and somewhat amazed, not to say astounded, at China's formal protest against America's partial embargo of arms shipments.

Perhaps Dr. Wang, the Chinese ambassador, may come to see the matter in a different light.

The partial embargo, although hailed with acclaim in Japan, is construed here as favorable to China. It has softened the demand for the enforcement of the ill-advised neutrality act, which a subservient pacifist and amateurish Congress enacted after the well-known formula of all those who leap before they look. As long as the neutrality law remains unenforced, China will benefit.

As a matter of fact the partial embargo applies only to shipments of munitions on government-owned vessels, and here's the trick in that:

There are only two such in the Orient trade, the Wichita and one other.

CLAIMS POSSIBLE

And here's the other important joker—the government's warning that munitions can be carried to the fighting—if not warring—nations of the Far East, at their "own risk" merely means that such ships cannot be convoyed.

It does not mean that subsequent claims for damages will not be backed by the government.

• • •

COTTON IN MIND

And there is another thing generally overlooked. It has been held that war munitions include cotton. Now the neutrality law was partly cooked up to its half-baked state by that astute diplomatist, Representative McReynolds, of Tennessee, by the grace of God and the House custom of seniority, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Tennessee is a cotton state. Sam had an eye to cotton when the law was framed. So obscure little Paragraph "D" of Section 1 of the celebrated un-neutral neutrality law carefully provides that arms, munitions, and implements of war, "shall not include raw materials." Well, isn't cotton a raw material? Certainly it is.

The scare among the Dixie plantation overseers that Secretary Roper carelessly kicked up the other day by a hint of cotton embargo was unwarranted by the facts.

Sam McReynolds, of Tennessee, had cotton in mind long ago.

STRANGE SIGHT

It's a strange spectacle, to see President Roosevelt, who helped Al Smith lead the great fight against the Klan which deadlocked the Madison Square Garden convention of 1924 for more than 100 ballots, finding himself in the position of appointing a Klansman to the Supreme Court.

Even stranger is the red-hot defense of Mr. Justice Black made by Senator Tom Connally, of Texas.

For Senator Connally owes his seat in the Senate today to the fact that he fought the Klan in Texas and ran against Senator Earle H. Mayfield, as the anti-Klan candidate. Mayfield's election was investigated by a Senate committee in 1924, and plenty of Klan stuff was brought out.

• • •

And it is also strange to behold Col. Frank Knox, Republican vice-presidential candidate in 1936, introducing Senator Wheeler, Progressive vice-presidential candidate in 1924, and erstwhile ardent New Dealer, at a Constitution Day ceremony in Chicago.

There will be more of that sort of thing seen from now on. Much more!

Marine Band Coming

The United States Marine Band will appear here Sunday, October 3, under direction of Captain Taylor Branson.

The band, familiarly known as "The President's Own," has been granted official permission for a fall tour by President Roosevelt and Boston will be their first port of call.

Afternoon and evening concerts, with a price scale of 25 cents, 50 cents and $1, will be held at the Boston Arena for the benefit of the Boston Evening American-Boston Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund.

Captain Branson, the first conductor of the famous band to have American-born parents, has arranged matched programs of musical numbers beautifully balanced.

Tickets for the afternoon and evening concerts will be on sale at the Boston Arena and the Boston Garden. Checks or money orders for seats should be made out to the Boston Arena.

Propeller Club To Elect Officers

Members of the Boston Propeller Club at the season's first regular dinner meeting tomorrow night at the Chamber of Commerce will hold the annual election of officers, together with the selection of delegates to the annual three-day convention of the Propeller Club of the United States, in Memphis, beginning October 11.

More Quest Entrants Who Seek Hollywood Rainbow's End

BARBARA HOLDEN SMITH, 17, of Winthrop, has had dramatic training in a Boston school and has had stage experience in amateur productions. She's a trained dancer. Has singing talent. A Winthrop high school graduate, she's five feet three inches tall and weighs 110 pounds.

RUTH REED, MARIE JEZREISKI, SOPHIA STAVCHUCK, ANN McCORMACK, VALMAR OLESKA and MARGUERITE WATHAU, whom you see in this pretty group picture, are still in the running in the New England Talent Quest being conducted by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio and the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

MARGUERITE NATHAN, 20, of Jamaica Plain, is a blue eyed blonde, five feet three and one half inches tall, and weighing 109 pounds. She's had a high school education and experience in amateur dramatic productions.

Quest Group On Stage Tonight

Face Reaction Test At Loew's State Theater

Loew's Orpheum. There will be about 70 young people in all. And from these 70, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer judges will select about 12 who will be given screen tests.

The audiences in the theaters will have nothing to do with the selection of the young people.

AUDIENCE REACTION

The object of the stage appearances is merely to give the judges an idea of how the contenders for screen tests react before an audience—how they retain their poise, how their voices and personalities register on a stage.

Some of the judges will be seated in the audience. Some will be on the stage to introduce the young people. Then, after tomorrow evening, when the stage appearances have been completed, the judges will announce their final decisions.

Those who are chosen for screen tests will be given manuscripts to learn, and will be coached in their lines by Director C. Edward Carrier.

Next Sunday the screen tests will be made in the ballroom of the Hotel Bradford. Admittance will be by invitation only — which means that those who are tested may invite their friends to attend.

ONE LUCKY PERSON

The person who shows the most promise in the screen tests will, of course, be the one to go to Hollywood and be given a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Don't forget that you may see some of the semi-finalists this evening on the stage of Loew's State theater.

Peter Renwick, George Green, Jean Godfrey, Everett Esty, Burton Holmes, Richard Bartlett, Jason Smith, Frank Genatossi, Charles Clapp, Chester Wright, Stewart Frazier and Paul Hutchinson.

Phyllis Wheeler, Eleanor Lorne, Barbara Gerry, Marguerite Nathan, Martha Terifero, Dorothy Tanner, Helen Hurley, Monya Stewart, Edwina Wilber, Helen Sotos, Dorothea Bousquet, Valmar Oleska, Virginia Rice, Stella Rogers, Marjorie Broder and Marian Rigney.

Mildred Stewart, Barbara Smith, Luciene Hakins, Rita Chappelle, Ella Davies, Virginia Larson, Germaine DuPont, Helen Coty, Barbara Foster, Adelaide Venness, Vitta Gelb, June Charlton, Loretta Moquin, Hersilia Elmer, Cora Boyle, Evelyn Sherman, Marjorie Simmons, Elizabeth Young, Doris Martin, Doris Johnson, Agnes Quinn, Norma Hurley and Eleanor Watts.

Thelma Spearin, Charlotte Barthal, Caroline Jenkins, Frances Trachenberg, Bernice Salans, Betty Allen, Louise Holsworth, Barbara Risdon, Patricia Roche, Theodora Linzee, Janet Carroll, Mary Curtin, Romayne Liverpool, Eleanor Magee, Sylvia Humphreys, Evelyn Delores, Loretta McLane, Marie Jezrelski, Sophia Stavchuck, Hope Walden, Helen Hughes, Gladys Olsen, Ann McCormack, Alice Mansfield, Ruth Reed, Virginia Heathcote, Samuel Wells, Marjorie Wells and Miriam Swartz.

EVELYN SHERMAN, 17, of Allston, has brown hair and brown eyes, is five feet three inches tall and weighs 110 pounds. She sings professionally and has had professional stage experience. She's a high school graduate.

Liner in 2nd Visit Here

More frequent arrivals of French Line ships in the near future were seen today with the scheduled arrival here of the company's steamer "De Grasse," from Havre, Southampton and Cobh, tomorrow at 8 a. m.

The "De Grasse" has a landing list of 103 passengers for this port, the remainder of several hundred to debark at New York.

The arrival of the "De Grasse" will mark the second visit of the ship to the port of Boston, and the first direct westbound call here.

Local officials of the company stated the matter of more frequent transatlantic passenger service to and from Boston was being considered by the heads of the line.

Auto Dealers Hold Outing

Two hundred and fifty members of the Metropolitan Boston Dealers Association, newspapermen and guests will assemble at Commonwealth Country Club tomorrow for their annual day's outing.

Golf, high class entertainment, luncheon and buffet supper and prizes of every conceivable description are part of the program.

Fred A. Ordway, president of the association stated:

"There has been a splendid spirit of co-operation on the part of everybody concerned to make the occasion an outstanding success, which is particularly gratifying to

Parsonage Sit-Down

BRECKENRIDGE, Mo., Sept. 22 (AP)—This city's threatened ecclesiastical sit-down had reached the watchful waiting stage today—the Rev. Patrick Job Allwell's family doing the watching, his congregation the waiting.

The Rev. Mr. Allwell met with his Methodist Episcopal flock last night, but the conference made little headway toward producing the $252 the pastor says he has coming in back salary.

Sunday he announced from the pulpit that unless the money was produced his wife and two daughters would stage a sit-down protest in the parsonage and live it out in rent while he moved on to another pastorate.

The pastor went to Kansas City today for a state church meeting. His family stayed at the parsonage—just watching developments.

Drills for Water, Strikes Oil Well

PENNSBORO, W. VA., Sept. 22 (AP)—Marvin Norman sighed with exasperation as he capped a new oil and gas well and resumed drilling.

Trawler Asks Aid For Seaman, Hurt

Coast guard headquarters today reported the trawler Maria Stella had asked for assistance for an injured seaman 30 miles east southeast of Chatham.

His name and the nature of his injuries were not disclosed.

CHESTER WRIGHT, 23, of Cambridge, is a Farm and Trade School graduate. He's a big fellow, six feet three inches tall and tipping the scales at 195. Has good untrained singing voice. Brown eyes.

JACK KILTY, 20, of Cambridge, is now a radio and concert singer. He's a brown-eyed, brown haired six-footer, weighing 150 pounds. High school education and some dramatic training.

Osgood Perkins' Ashes Back in Native Newton

The ashes of Osgood Perkins, the actor, stricken by a heart attack in Washington, D. C., only a few hours after a brilliant premiere of his new play, "Susan and God," were returned to his native home in Newton for burial today.

His untimely death at the age of 45 brought to an end a brilliant stage and screen career for the Newton High School and Harvard University graduate.

In accordance with his wishes, his body was cremated at a private service, his wife, the former Janet Rane of Beacon street, Waban, daughter of a former state forester, announced today.

Interment will be in Forest Hills cemetery in Jamaica Plain.

Holding Tax Proposed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—A withholding levy on taxable salaries up to $5000 will be proposed to a House tax subcommittee by Chairman Vinson (D.) of Kentucky, as a means of simplyfying the revenue system.

The plan would eliminate the requirement that small taxpayers file income tax returns. Instead, their employers would hold back part of their earnings, as is done now with social security assessments, and pay the money to the government as taxes.

Employers would file affidavits stating the number of their dependents and grounds for exemption so that deductions could be made.

Vinson said he had not worked out details of the proposal and had not taken it up formally with the treasury.

Body of Girl Auto Victim on Way

The body of Miss Edith N. Parnham, 27, of Andover, was being returned to her home today for burial from Sturgis, Mich.

She died in a hospital there yesterday, of injuries received in an automobile accident when a car, said by police to be driven by R. C. Shubert, also of Andover, collided with another machine on the state highway.

'Dead End' At Loew's

"Dead End," Samuel Goldwyn's stirring dramatic triumph co-starring Sylvia Sidney and Joel McCrea and based on the Broadway stage hit by Sidney Kingsley, opens on Friday at both Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters. The companion feature will be Columbia's "It Can't Last Forever."

This powerful drama of a day in the lives of a handful of humans who inhabit a "dead end" city street, where fashionable apartments rub elbows with squalid tenements of the waterfront, set records in its Broadway run and was cheered from coast to coast. It reaches even greater heights in the film version.

Sylvia is seen as Drina, the slum girl who is battling desperately to raise herself and her small brother, Tommy, to a better life. McCrea plays Dave, the poor architect she loves, who, in turn, loves Kay (Wendy Barrie), who has found a way out of the slums into luxury and won't return even for love.

Humphrey Bogart is seen as Baby Face Martin, the gangster with a price on his head, who braves death in the slum where he was spawned only to find that his own mother hates him. The Dead End kids from the original New York stage cast, Billy Halop, Gabriel Dell, Bobby Jordan, Huntz Hall, Leo Gorcey and Bernard Punsley, relive their famous characterizations of Tommy, "T. B.," "Angel," "Dippy," "Spit," and "Milty."

"It Can't Last Forever," co-stars Ralph Bellamy and Betty Furness.

AUSTEN LAKE

AUSTEN LAKE

PROVIDENCE, SEPT. 22—IT MAY BE THAT THE MODERN REPLICAS of Brown's old football heroes, like Sprackling, Shurtleff, Mishel, Cornsweet and Spellman, are being lured away to more lucrative college opportunities. They are not matriculating at Brown these hazy autumn afternoons. The varsity which rehearsed its mazurkas and fandangoes at Aldrich Field on the eve of the opening game was just an average set of American youth without any Bulgarian mountain types grinding their back molars and grunting gutteral "Ughs."

No, there was not a hairy ear or a sandpaper chin in the entire squad and it appears that Brown, like Harvard, is playing its students again this year. And has the Carnegie Foundation heard about that?

Still, I am not erasing the capital B from the Bruins and leaving the rest. For "Tuss" McLaughry, now in his eleventh year as Brown's football professor, springs from the same tenacious Scotch stock whence Gil Dobie and Andy Kerr hail. He, too, has the knack of heating up average kids to exhale flame and sparks. It has been five years since the last Brown team started any grass fires and biffed over Harvard, Yale, Holy Cross, to mention a few.

Yes, Tuss has hit the big kettle several times and may be [illegible]

Shy in Replacements

THERE IS NO NEPOTISM IN JOHN'S job at Brown. For he is a lean, strapping 195-pounder with the same limber put-together and legginess of his sire, though swarthier in complexion and a brunet in place of his dad's blondness. He has had a stern football rearing too, having played four years for Moses Brown, where his younger brother Bob is the current captain, and at Andover Academy. So, if he isn't exactly another Sprackling or a Mishel, at least he is another McLaughry.

In the opinion of the copyright owner this Brown squad has the makings of one fair first team. After that the remainder can be tossed up for grabs. There may be some hero material left or there may not. Meanwhile, with tremors, Brown is readying for Saturday's game with Connecticut Aggie, the impertinent bantam which gave Brown apoplexy and a 27 to 0 smacking in the opening contest last year. Maybe the Aggies hadn't read Brown's clippings. Anyway, there it is, jelled into the record book for posterity to read, and posterity will never know that Brown made 17 first downs to 3 for the Aggies and goofed the game away. That team!

So the starting backfield will be McLaughry, of course, and Irving Hall, Frank Foster and Bob Riegler from last year's [illegible]. There are eleven backfield men on the entire Brown squad which gives you some idea. Still history shows there have been some successful college teams like Geneva and Centre, when they were licking Harvard, which never had more than eleven players all told. In fact, I have heard Bo McMillin, the present Kansas coach, tell how they carried their spare laundry under their ten-gallon hats when they went trooping. They didn't even have a student manager.

Ends Cloudy; Guards Unsettled

THE STARTING BROWN LINE MAY HAVE Mike Turcone over the ball, though if Cliff Lathrop's sore shoulder heals, Turk may be moved to a guard. Lathrop, a sophomore, accommodated several camera men during an early practice and telescoped his shoulder trying to dive over a tackling dummy for pictorial effect. The photoes turned out well.

Sophomores are prominent on this Brown team, last year's freshmen team having survived the rigors of June final examinations unusually intact. A couple of them, George Mawhinney and Spencer Manrodt, will be at the guards, unless a couple of upperclassmen named Gale Wisbach and Jack Hawley get at the guards first. The tackles, one of the bright spots, will have Bill Battles and a big 205er, John Cioci, while Lane Fuller, another sophomore, waits for something to happen.

But Tuss is having a slight case of end trouble, trying to decide among four second year men, Tom Nash, Joe Finklestien, Bordon Chase and John—though, oddly, he has a pair of varsity left-overs who started most of last year's major games, Vic Patrone and George Larkowich. So Tuss' gloom can't be too thick, though he sums up the line situation with a barometric analysis, saying the end situation seems cloudy and the guards unsettled.

Mercifully Brown has lightened its load this year by dumping Colgate, a team that has always been an awkward anticlimax over which Brown's best teams have stumbled. Colgate had an annoying habit of bumping off Brown due, Brown men feel, to their lads inability to maintain a head of steam for so artificial a rivalry, so late in the year. This year Rutgers gets the Turkey date to mutual contentment all around.

Cubs Send Carleton After Second Game

Determined To Bury Giants

"We have met the enemy and we don't know the absolute result yet," Grimm bellowed. "We'll give those guys hell. We're going to win. All you guys played whoopsy daisy ball."

"Nice pitching, Larry," he yelled (French, who was relieved in the seventh). "You had tough luck."

"Swell hittin', Leo," Grimm hollered to Hartnett, whose triple scored three runs in the first inning and whose double also scored another run in the eighth.

[illegible]

"We're over the hump now," Carleton commented. "It's the first one that counts."

London Business Man in Record Try

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP)—John Cobb, London business man, announced today he would seek a new world automobile speed record, probably on the Bonneville salt flats in Utah.

Cobb now is completing a 3,000 horse-power racer at his workshop in Esher, Surrey.

It was designed by Reid Railton, who planned Sir Malcolm Campbell's famous Bluebird, the present record holder at 301.13 M. P. H.

St. Anselm's Confident Of Beating Holy Cross

Tied 'em In 1936 Game

By WALTER KILEY

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 22—Fate has once again in strange fashion interwoven the fortunes of [illegible] O'Donnell and Jackson Cannell, products of Everett gridirons and former directors of Holy Cross and Dartmouth football destinies.

[illegible]

CAN BLOCK, TACKLE

O'Donnell and Cannell [illegible] New Hampshire [illegible]

[illegible]

BUTCHKA PASSING

Probably Holy Cross looks [illegible]

[illegible]

Jawoski is a [illegible] pounds who can pass [illegible] kick and block and does well in each department. While his kicking is slightly off the standard of the great Johnny Spirida his all-around talents far exceed those of his predecessor.

Butchka ranks second only to Holy Cross Osmanski as a fullback here in New England.

Put the Hawks in a big time college and he would be a wonder. It's his smart directing of the team which has produced such startling results in the past. Now he has become something of a passing sensation.

Unfortunately, however, the backfield situation is limited in numbers. In all there are some six backs who can go in and give a fair account of themselves. Left Joe Kenney of Malden, who will understudy the fast stepping McLean at quarterback, and Eddie Cullen of the home town are the only capable replacements.

Therefore the Saturday case resolves itself down to getting by without injuries of these backs, surviving iron man roles against a bigger and stronger opponent.

O'DONNELL PROUD

O'Donnell, however, has two good men for every one of his nine positions, with a better than average center in Mike Mallo of Revere who has improved immensely in a year, with two fast, heady guards in Everett's Bill Furness and Marlboro's Peter Sperandio, two big bruising tackles in Captain Matt Kenney of Manchester and Joe Spinelli of Boston English High and a choice of promising ends in Manchester's Tom Connor, P. Johnson of Worcester and Framingham's Leonard Tever.

Together they comprise a mighty grand rush line for a small college, better in prospect than the game hand of a year ago, and just as courageous.

Boston Evening American Staff Photo

THE BOSS. George Hopkins, Lynn English quarterback, will take complete charge of the team in their opening game against Chelsea at the Memorial Stadium, Saturday afternoon. It will be the opener for Lynn and Chelsea's second game.

Polo Greats Renew War

[illegible]

No. 1 Gerald Balding [illegible] at No. 2 [illegible] at back. Old Westbury, with two members of last year's American team which defeated England in London, has an equally impressive array. The international stars are Mike Phipps at No. 1, Stewart Iglehart at No. 3 [illegible] No. 2 and [illegible] at back.

Lynn English Headed For Another Title

[illegible]

[illegible] Lynn English placed second to Lowell High in the state basketball tournament conducted at the Tech Hangar last winter.

Lynn English captured the state championship in baseball when it upset Watertown High at Fenway Park last June.

—Lynn English, so Coach Tom Whelan says, has the makings of a powerful football machine this fall and might grab off the state championship.

COGLIANO STARS

"Will Lynn English continue to lead all high schools in the state as regards accomplishments on the athletic field?"

[illegible]

[illegible] any better than the [illegible] himself, Coach Tom Whelan [illegible] is what he says:

"English has the making of a pretty strong outfit this fall.

"Say, this boy's got everything. He's the type of fullback that can crack an opponent's line to shreds.

"Two other top-flight gridsters are Captain George Bontatis, right end, and Bob Kelly, right halfback. Both these lads are veterans with football sense and rare ability.

"In a word, Lynn English has a football club that is set to go places in a big way. While we are not talking about the state championship, we have hopes of establishing a pretty fine record this year."

HEGAN, BESSOM QUIT

[illegible] have the worries of one of the finest [illegible] mentors in these New England States [illegible] Tom Whelan doesn't hand [illegible] and mass information [illegible]

These fellows are trying to fill the holes left vacant when Jim Hegan and Ray Bessom, aces of the state championship baseball team and later with the Lynn American Legion junior nine, decided to protect their baseball future by giving up the pigskin game.

The wing slots are filled in grand style with Captain Bontatis and Angelo Nickatikis holding sway.

It was the latter who snatched a forward pass from Johnny Morrissey, substitute quarterback, last Monday and ran for the winning touchdown in a scrimmage with Revere High.

Lyman Bishop and Al Ventura exhibit their wares from the tackle berths. Coach Whelan says both are heavy and experienced enough to make All Scholastic ratings this fall.

GREAT CENTER

Just now, Whelan is having a difficult time trying to match up the two best guards. All four boys for the job, Bob Scribner, Billy Henderson, Walter Martin and Tony DeGrand, stack up about even when it comes to actual play.

There isn't any question about the center position. Al Richardson, a veteran and a grand pivot man, has the assignment all bagged.

Al has a powerful charge on the offensive, passes the leather well, can back up a line on the defense and plays hard every second of every ball game.

The North Shore eleven is slated to open its season Saturday when it treks to the new Memorial Stadium in Chelsea to do battle with Frank Garvey's Red Devils.

Bay State Boys Making Good at Cornell

By MURRAY KRAMER

The old griddle is slowly warming up and the hottest football season since pre-depression time is in prospect . . . Harvard, Boston College and Boston University will all field better clubs than last year and attendance figures should run much higher than any time in the past eight years.

Gil Dobie

It's easy to tell that football is in the air . . . when the big league clubs go south in the spring, sixteen managers chirp that they will cop the flag . . . before a fight, both managers boastfully shout, "my boy can't loose" . . . 500 college teams report, and 450 mentors chant a requiem over their team's chances.

Over at Cornell, Carl Snavely, evidently impressed by the Gil Dobie tradition, moans that he won't win a major game . . . it's true he has lost Jack Batten and Reg Baker, his keymen in the backfield, but he has his whole line back . . . and a coach will take a veteran line to experienced backs anytime . . . one of his ends will be Carl Spang, a junior who prepped at Thayer Academy and hails from Quincy . . . he made the grade as a sophomore. Karl "Whitey" Ness [illegible] Ithaca is not too bad.

Middlebury opens its season [illegible] day against Williams [illegible] has a promising squad up in the Green Mountain State and may give the Purple plenty of trouble.

Johnny Stabile, a Medford boy, who easily made the freshman team last year, is in the running for the center position.

Way out in the Dakotas they are singing the praises of Jim Pollard while Tuss McLaughry groans . . . Fritz is a one man football team but could never stay eligible long enough at Brown to play . . . He is now at North Dakota State and single handed led the club to its greatest season in history last fall . . . Fritz personally scored 12 touchdowns and booted six extra points . . . Five of his touchdown runs were for 68, 70, 72, 70 and 85 yards respectively! . . . It's probably just as well that Tuss doesn't see many accounts of North Dakota activities.

Swinging down to the Baltimore section we find that Charley Havens is a bit glum . . . The Western Maryland coach has lost all his backs and ends . . . To make matters worse, a sophomore who was politely named LeRoy Campbell, but who was a hell cat on the field has left school . . . B. C. visits Baltimore on November 6, and when Havens was asked his opinion of the Eagles, he quickly [illegible] with "Best in the East."

The situation in the B. C.-Northeastern game will be somewhat reversed this year . . . last fall the Eagles starting their first season under Dobie had very effective offense . . . this season the Huskies start from scratch under Jimmy Dunn, and outside of a few basic plays will show nothing.

Pat Hanley

Coach Pat Hanley will trim his varsity squad today for the first time during his four years at Boston University . . . he is going to restrict his training table to 35 players . . . this leaves about 12 on the outside . . . these men, however, will be allowed to continue practice if they wish to commute . . . the understanding being, of course, that if they make [illegible] grade, somebody will have to move out.

There is a rumor about town that Tufts will step out in new grid outfits this year . . . despite the craze for silk panties, the Jumbos have always remained true to the old fashioned uniforms . . . their idea was that it's the material within the pads that count.

Veterans To Fore At B. C.

Cignetti, Annanis, Sophs, Ousted From Team A

Judging from the present status of Boston College's football situation, it looks very much as if an experienced team will take the field against Northeastern next Saturday afternoon at the Heights.

The wholesale shaking up of teams A and B has given weight to the fact that Gil Dobie will use his more seasoned veterans to get off on the right start with Northeastern.

Crusaders Drill On Pass Defense

WORCESTER, Sept. 22 (AP)—Dr. Eddie Anderson, having announced his starting Holy Cross eleven, the Crusaders planned to concentrate on forward pass defense and attack today and tomorrow in preparation for Saturday's opening game with St. Anselm.

St. Anselm held the Crusaders to a scoreless tie last year.

The H. C. starters, named after yesterday's light practice, are: Sabo and O'Melia, ends; Manoogian and Shields, tackles; Carr and Coll, guards; Captain Maunner, center; Ouellette, Giardi, Osmanski and Gerasimas, backs.

Newmarket Races To Be Held Sunday

NEWMARKET, N. H., Sept. 22—The complete card of auto races postponed last Sunday because of rain will be held at the speedway here Sunday afternoon with the same riders billed to compete.

The feature race over the 20 mile route will lure drivers from all sections of New England and New York.

Pirates, Reds Change Schedules

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Pirates of Pittsburgh and the Cincinnati Reds will wind up the 1937 baseball season at Forbes Field in a three-day series, October 1 to 3.

A previously announced plan to move back the game to October 1 to play a double-header on the closing day was abandoned, the Pittsburgh club said today.

'Suicide' Slate Fails to Daunt Salem Optimist

This is the fourth of a series of winning entries in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser School Sports Story Writing Contest. The author, Edward Geary, 418 Essex street, Salem, is 17 years old and in the post-graduate school at Salem High. The story appears in original form.

By EDWARD GEARY

First is Captain Bill Colin, a 200-pound tackle.

EDWARD GEARY

Next is Tony Corrao, hard tackling roving center and the boy who was mainly responsible for holding in check Lou Montgomery, famous colored flash from Brockton High, in that thrilling 20-20 tie which featured the 1936 schoolboy campaign.

Finally there is Normie Davies, a light but shifty end who late last season broke into the starting lineup by displaying fighting courage against much heavier opponents when he was a substitute.

This fall, Bill is forced to go without the services of two outstanding backfield candidates, one of them Al Juralewicz, who for two consecutive years was selected by almost every sports writer as an All [illegible]

The other, Stan Fusho, while still in school, is ineligible for football because of the age limit set upon high school athletes.

Juralewicz is headed for Temple where he will be a great asset to "Pop" Warner's Owls, while Fusho intends to finish his high school career by helping Coach Broderick round the backfield candidates into condition.

At the spring training sessions, Wayne Milner, former Salem High and Notre Dame All America, taught the ends to cover punts, elude defensive backs, snare passes and other rudiments of the game.

Wayne has been a great help not only to the coaching staff but to the boys themselves.

He has advised them not only on gridiron tactics but on schools where they may procure an education and intensive athletic education at the same time.

[illegible]

This year Salem has the stiffest schedule of any high school team in these parts, playing Marblehead, Lawrence, Everett, Brockton, Peabody, Haverhill and Beverly, almost one after another.

[illegible]

Wooden grandstands also are now under construction, so that when finished Salem will have a stadium worthy of its teams.

This year we are not supposed to be so "hot." Our schedule is suicidal.

Bets $500 Ambers Will Win Bout

Lou Brouillard Picks Thil Over Apostoli

By JACK CONWAY

BOSTON MONEY will ride with Lou Ambers when he defends his title as world's lightweight champion against Pedro Montanez of Porto Rico in a 15-round bout at the Carnival of Champions at the Polo Grounds, New York, tomorrow night.

Mr. Boston

On the way back from Rockingham Park where I ended up with an armful of losing mutuel tickets, I found Matchmaker "Rip" Valenti in a huddle with Johnny Buckley near Jack Sharkey's Tavern.

"I just bet $500 that Ambers would beat Montanez," said Valenti. "I got even money, and think I got the best of it. Ambers will be a ringside favorite."

"I believe Ambers will win, declared Buckley. "He is a good boxer and too fast for Montanez."

I was still thinking of those losing mutuel tickets when I ventured the opinion I liked Montanez to win.

"Montanez is aggressive and a puncher," I insisted. "He'll keep chasing Ambers and should catch up with him with plenty of healthy punches."

Brouillard Picking Thil to Win

[illegible]

Thil doesn't take a body punch very well, said Buckley, which is why Brouillard always could beat him. Lou tosses plenty of leather to the body.

Brouillard fought Apostoli on the coast, and knows the challenger is not a body puncher. Apostoli likes to let his punches go for the head. Thil takes a good smash around the head without giving ground.

"And to think Brouillard knocked him out in their last bout only to be deprived of the decision by French officials," declared Buckley. "I'm going to New York to see the Thil-Apostoli bout and I don't care who wins as long as the victor will take on Brouillard."

[illegible] resting my case with the champion. Ross is a good boxer, fast and punches fairly well and should [illegible]

Garcia's kayo smash

[illegible]

It wouldn't be a cinch for anybody to pick the winner of this one. Zanelli is younger than Callahan and the better puncher. If he scored with one of his best Sunday punches he would send Andy back to Lawrence in a hurry. Callahan, on the other hand, would end up with the decision if he could keep inside of Zanelli's swings and keep piling up points by scoring to the head and body.

[illegible]

"When I would win a fight impressively," Jimmy told me, "Tony would throw his hands in the air and insist I looked very bad. He was afraid I would let down in my work if he even suggested I looked good. I think Tony would have hit me with one of his crutches if I had ever put up a bad fight."

It was Palazola who staged the [illegible] Ross [illegible] San Francisco. That was [illegible] Garcia had Ross on the floor twice in the first round.

Bingham Named on Board

New Commission Appointed by Members

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP).—The Eastern Intercollegiate Association still was looking today for a successor to Walter R. Okeson who retires January 1 after serving ten years as the commissioner for the selection of football officials.

[illegible] yesterday [illegible] by way of a [illegible] for Okeson but steps were taken toward expanding the [illegible] of the association.

With 27 of its 33 members represented, said a vague formal statement issued after the meeting, "the association approved a proposal that efforts be made to establish a central office for eastern intercollegiate athletics, the same to be administered by a commissioner directing the activities of the various leagues, associations and groups participating in the program of the office.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

"The association led the way toward the creation of such a central office by appointing a committee instructed to investigate the possibilities of putting the suggested new federation or affiliation in operation on Jan. 1, 1938, with the commissioner of the central office succeeding Walter R. Okeson, the resigning commissioner of the E. I. A., in his responsibility for the appointment of football officials."

Tommy Farr Arrives In Hub

"Hello, Boston!"

[illegible]

"It's a good chance for a workout," said Tommy as he tossed himself on his hotel bed to get a little rest after riding the rails from Toronto, where he filled in as a boxing referee last night.

"I must keep in condition, for I expect to be very busy this year proving that my staying with Joe Louis was no fluke. I figure that before long the people will realize that I am the only one in the present heavyweight class that can defeat Louis."

TOMMY FARR SALUTES BOSTON

Tommy Farr, English heavyweight champion, smiles upon Boston admirers as he steps off the train at the South Station today. The Briton, who went the distance with Joe Louis, is going to have his hands full tonight when he referees a "battle royal" at Charley Gordon's wrestling show tonight at Mechanics Building.

Debate Copper Drop

Trade Authorities Say Speculators Cause Of Recent Break

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Copper authorities and speculators do not agree regarding the causes of the recent decline in the price of the red metal. The former say that a top heavy speculative position had been built up abroad and, as usual, when such accounts go stale, collapse was inevitable. The latter retort that the real trouble lies in the steady increase in stocks since April.

Using the only figures on supply a[illegible] world stocks of refined c[illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] since April [illegible] a decrease of [illegible] tons has taken place since [illegible] spring of 1933. That is hard[illegible] aging and beside such a [illegible] increase of 71,520 tons [illegible] this year does not seem of [illegible] importance. Further than [illegible] comparison of the latest [illegible] in the comparable period in 1936.

* * *

The gloomy members of the business forecasting fraternity who see nothing but trade recessions ahead are advised by the writer to obtain a copy of the current Alexander Hamilton Institute bulletin. There they will find some rather surprising optimism. Using this year's prospective farm income index as a guide in determining the normal value for factory output some recession is conceded. The theory is that in July factory output was above the farm index and the remaining months of the year may logically be expected to readjust disparities. But it is quickly pointed out that if government expectations on total farm income [illegible] 1937 are realized the rec[illegible] will not be as extensive as previously thought.

* * *

After [illegible] In[illegible] Department of Commerce [illegible] index stands at 91.1 compared with the former figure of 86. This [illegible] considerably reduces the excessiveness of the July factory output number of 99.9 and indicates a [illegible] of previous [illegible] of trade losses is logical. Regard[illegible] of the prospect of some [illegible] still to be noted that [illegible] for the year are [illegible] collapse to [illegible].

* * *

The stock market as portrayed by the averages continues to seek a good bottom formation. Industrials have followed an erratic path on the charts but utilities and rails have behaved in excellent fashion. Both of them have held above the low points established on September 13 and if recent market action may be taken at its face value they will continue to hold. In both groups we understand the more nimble members of the trading set have taken positions. The theory is that if a break through to new minimums takes place holdings taken at current prices can be dumped without great loss.

* * *

From a strictly technical viewpoint ideal action by rails and utilities from now on includes a rally above the highs of last week. Then chartists will say that a series of higher highs and lows giving the impression of a flight of stairs is, as so many times in the past, forecasting a good rebound. And when one remembers the total following of such technicians it is not difficult to picture the development of good buying orders.

Stocks Up as Ticker Lags

Steels, Motors, Rails Specialties in Forefront

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Stocks generally pushed higher in today's market but at a pace that barely kept the ticker tape moving most of the time.

At the best leaders were up as much as 2 or more points. Around noon, however, the lack of buying vigor tended to bring slight back tracking tendencies in some issues.

Steels, motors, rails, coppers and specialties were in the forefront of the forward tilt. A few losers spotted the list. Well ahead were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, American Rolling Mill, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Atlantic Coast Line, Anaconda, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Howe Sound, National Lead, St. Joseph Lead, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil of N. J., Allied Chemical, General Electric, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Deere, Loew's.

Allis Chalmers, Borg Warner, Coca-Cola and Union Carbide.

Moderate losers were J. I. Case, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Caterpillar Tractor, Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific.

CURRENT TOPICS

Trading attention was attracted to the mid-week review of Iron Age, which stressed the fact steel mill backlogs have been depleted to such an extent production schedules are substantially lower in virtually all sections.

The survey said that, while there has been moderate improvement in the volume of new business, it has come mostly from the automotive field. Building construction demand, it was added, has flattened out and railroad steel orders are at a low ebb.

On the other hand the Edison Electric Institute reported power output for the week ended Sept. 18 was up 5.9 per cent over the preceding week and 12.4 per cent above the corresponding 1936 period.

At the beginning of [illegible] the French franc was off [illegible] of a cent at 3.4[illegible] cents. Sterling was unchanged at $4.95[illegible].

September Corn In New Rise

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Nearly three cents a bushel new jump of September corn prices distinguished early trading in grains today. Scantiness of intended deliveries of corn formed the chief immediate stimulus for higher quotations.

Opening ⅜ off to ⅜ up, September 104⅝-¾, December 61[illegible], the corn market soon rose all around. Wheat started ⅜ to 1 cent lower, September 104⅞, December 105[illegible], and then rallied.

$2 U. S. Smelting Common Dividend

Directors of United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Co. declared a dividend of $2 a share on the common stock, compared with $2 three months ago and a like amount a year ago.

Regular quarterly dividend of 87 cents a share was declared on preferred stock. Both dividends are payable October 15 to stock of record October 1.

Steel Ingot Production Curtailed

Sharpest Reductions In Pittsburgh, Wheeling

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Greatly depleted backlogs have forced steel mills to curtail ingot production, estimated this week at 76 per cent for the country, and adjust rolling schedules downward, "Iron Age" said today in its weekly survey of the industry.

"Sharpest reductions in ingot output have taken place in the Pittsburgh and Wheeling districts, in the former from 82 per cent to 73 per cent this week and in the latter from 87 per cent to 85 per cent," the review continued.

"Pronounced weakness in steel scrap, particularly at Pittsburgh, where it has declined $2 a ton on a sale to a leading mill, tends to confirm the less favorable view of autumn prospects for the steel industry. With a drop of 75 cents a ton at Chicago and 50 cents at Philadelphia, the 'Iron Age' scrap composite price becomes $18.25, or only $1.17 above the year's low in June.

NEW BUSINESS IMPROVES

"While there has been moderate improvement in the volume of new business, it has emanated mostly from the automobile industry, which thus far has bought only a small part of the steel it will require for its contemplated production during the fourth quarter.

Building construction activity, so far as heavy steel products are involved, seems to have flattened out. This week's lettings were a little more than 11,000 tons.

Oil Head Studies Future

Old Methods For Finding New Oil Are Fading

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

International News Service Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—The old, romantic hit or miss methods of wildcatting for new oil wells will soon be relegated to the limbo of forgotten things, according to executives of the great petroleum companies.

Alluding to changing techniques for finding additional oil, the chief executive of one of the principal Standard Oil units told me:

"I think the most significant tendency in the oil industry today is in the science of geophysics in the location of oil structures where there is no surface development to indicate the geology. This tendency when coupled with the ever improving methods and materials for deeper drilling must be looked to for years to come as our principal reliance for the discovery of new reserves to replace those which are being depleted.

"I am not one of those who believe we can measure the life of production of crude oil in terms of one or two generations. Should crude oil become scarcer and reach a certain level of price, there are practical means now available for the production of petroleum products from oil shale or from coal, the supply of both of which products is tremendous."

* * *

[illegible] as to w[illegible] Federal government can [illegible] help the oil industry, this company president succinctly said:

"I do not know what the Federal government can do now to help the oil industry except to leave it alone. I do not favor any new type of legislation."

Relating the discussion to labor relations, he executive added:

"With our company, labor conditions, notwithstanding a very material increase in payrolls, have been very satisfactory. Here and there has been some concern by some in the industry about labor conditions, but in my opinion it is a concern more of fear as to what the National Labor Relations Board would do in case of a vote to be taken among the employes.

"There seems to be a very general feeling that the National Labor Relations Board is very unfair. The board is not consistent in its rulings and makes exactly opposite rulings in two similar cases simply to suit, apparently, its CIO tendencies."

When the [illegible] type of [illegible] National Labor Rela[illegible] was [illegible] of the [illegible] of the White House recently, denial was made of any [illegible] partiality. The administration feels that even the Wagner Act permits some regulation of labor unions, and is said to be prepared for new regulatory legislation along the British lines ultimately outlawing general strikes and rigidly limiting so-called sympathetic strikes.

Concerning wages in the oil industry, the petroleum executive explained:

NOTICE TO BONDHOLDERS

Abitibi Power & Paper Company, Limited

A meeting of the Bondholders of Abitibi Power & Paper Company, Limited, to be held in Toronto, Canada, on October 15, 1937, has been ordered by The Supreme Court of Ontario.

It is important that all Bondholders of the Company be present or represented at this meeting, the purpose of which is to consider the Plan of Sale of Assets and Reorganization presented by the Bondholders' Representative Committee.

In order to be represented at the meeting, unregistered Bondholders must present their bonds at the meeting in person, or deposit their bonds in advance with any bank, trust company or some other depositary approved by the Trustee, obtain a voting certificate entitling the person therein named to vote at the meeting, and appear in person or by proxy at the meeting with such voting certificate.

Bondholders are urged promptly to send their voting certificates and proxies to Montreal Trust Company, Trustee, or to the Bondholders' Representative Committee, Room 1000, 44 Wall Street, New York City, or Room 2400, Canadian Bank of Commerce Building, Toronto, Canada, or to communicate with the Committee in case further information is desired.

Wife Bet on Horses, Doctor Tells Court

SALEM, Sept. 22—Because his wife, Mrs. Marie L. Popoff, persisted in betting on horses he was forced to stop her allowance, Dr. Constantine Popoff, wealthy Haverhill physician, testified in probate court today.

The physician, who obtained a court order in [illegible] restraining her from selling or transferring property in their Haverhill home, was on the stand in a separate support suit filed by her.

He testified that one year, two years back, he did $4000 worth of business and in January of this present year $1200.

In 1936 he paid all the household bills and gave his wife $40 a month spending money, but was forced to cut her to $[illegible] because of her betting.

This year he was forced because she persisted in handing her money to bookies to cut the allowance altogether, he declared.

Dr. Popoff denied brandishing a revolver as his wife had admitted [illegible] that at one time he carried a gun in his car because he had been a holdup victim.

Mrs. Popoff testified she met the doctor while she was studying nursing at Boston City Hospital and he was an interne there also. They were married in 1917 and separated in June 1935.

She said that on the 15th of April in 1936, after she had been out, she walked into his home and he seized her by the wrist and demanded to know where she had been.

"I thought he was breaking it," she testified.

On another occasion, according to her story, he seized her pocketbook and looked through it, then struck her with it on the head.

Lowell Girl Key in N.Y. Slaying

Teller's Fiance Knew of Dinners With Other Woman

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Chestnut-haired Grace Donohue, 28-year-old Lowell, Mass., harpist, found herself today in the position of key figure in a probe of her sweetheart's slaying.

George O. Frank, 47-year-old stock teller and acknowledged fiance of the Lowell girl, lay on a morgue slab with a bullet wound in the back of his head.

A slim red-headed typist giving the name of Gertrude O'Keefe, 37, and an address only a few doors from that of Frank, was under questioning by Brooklyn authorities. Frank's body was found just outside the O'Keefe apartment, police said.

KNEW OF "OTHER GIRL"

"George had told me that he was seeing another woman occasionally," Miss Donohue declared. "He said that he had been taking her to picture shows and to dinner once in a while.

"But it was only a case of companionship," the Lowell girl said. "George told me it was only platonic friendship.

"I saw nothing wrong in it. He had been spending every week-end with me."

But police asserted that they had seen something wrong in it from the moment that Frank's body was found.

They said that the attractive red-haired [illegible] friend had admitted having been with Frank on a birthday celebration on Monday [illegible] a few hours before he was [illegible].

Court Ends 'Love Feud'

A Quincy district court judge refused today to involve the Commonwealth in a three-week-old East Weymouth "love-feud."

In court as complainants were James Martin, 23, and Reginald Phillips, 21, both of East Weymouth.

Martin, with Phillips as "best man," is alleged to have "walked out" Sunday, Sept. 5, on his bride-to-be, Miss Anna Rivelle, 19, East Weymouth.

Martin and Phillips today sought to have Judge Kenneth Johnson issue complaints against her three uncles, Angelo, Philipe and Rocco Catlino.

The Catlinos allegedly threatened Martin and Phillips on the day of the fiasco that there would be "a funeral instead of a wedding."

The uncles denied the threats, but admitted they ordered Martin and Phillips away. Judge Johnson said evidence was insufficient to justify court action.

'Achilles' Shot in Wrong Heel

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22 (AP)—Patrolman LeRoy Jordan saw a thief escaping from a taproom and fired hastily. The bullet imbedded in the heel of the suspect's right shoe tripped him. Jordan captured him but was annoyed.

"The light was bad," he apologized. "I was aiming at his left heel!"

Map Appeal for Bartolini

The Norfolk county jury that found Oscar V. Bartolini guilty of murder in the first degree took eight ballots before it reached a verdict, but there never was a question of acquittal, it was learned today.

During the six hours and 57 minutes that the jurors were weighing the evidence the state produced to show that the 51-year-old Quincy handy man had slain Mrs. Grayce Asquith and dismembered her body the only disagreement was on the degree of guilt.

An interpreter repeated the verdict to the prisoner. He shrugged his shoulders and said:

Attorney Lourie plans to visit Bartolini at Dedham jail during the day to formulate the inevitable appeal. The appeal will not be made, however, until after the prisoner has been sentenced to death.

Evangelist Called In Coast Vice Quiz

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 22 (AP)—Rheba Crawford, estranged former evangelist associate of Aimee Semple McPherson, was subpoenaed to appear today before the county grand jury investigating gambling and vice.

"I don't know what this is all about," Miss Crawford said, "but I suspect I am about to be made the goat in a political plot."

Risk Firms Assailed

Striking back at the insurance companies of the state that have aimed their fire at him, Insurance Commissioner Francis J. DeCelles today attempted to establish the fact that the companies have failed to submit figures necessary for making up the 1938 compulsory insurance rates.

William N. Magoun was questioned by DeCelles at the hearing. He reiterated statements that his insurance rating bureau makes no check on the statistics furnished it by the insurance companies.

During the examination Magoun admitted that several errors had been made in calculating expenses in reports of the Massachusetts Accident Prevention and rating bureau.

6 in Escape Recaptured

REIDSVILLE, Ga., Sept. 22 (AP)—Six convicts who escaped last night from Georgia's glistening new Tattnall prison were recaptured early today.

State officials hastened to explain the $1,500,000 structure, built by the Public Works Administration and dubbed by inmates "The Alcatraz of the Piney Woods," was not in full operation and that guard personnel had not been completed.

Republican 'Ban' Asked for Club

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 22 (AP)—Twelve members of the Columbia Club, exclusive $1,000,000 Republican stronghold since the days of President Harrison, had a notice posted today suggesting the word "Republican" be stricken from the club's constitution, and that the institution be made non-political.

Republican presidents and candidates for president have made the club their headquarters through the years when in Indianapolis.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

I can't help feeling a mild kind of envy of the Tipperary, Irish Free State, farmer, who was charged the other day with possessing an unlicensed shotgun and whose case was dismissed by the judge because of his enormous and incredible innocence — not to say ignorance.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

It came out in the hearing that not only had he never heard of a shotgun license but also he had never heard of (1) Edward VIII's abdication, (2) the World War, (3) the Irish Free State or its president, Eamon de Valera, (4) the Black-and-Tan rebellion and, (5) President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

His name is John O'Meara and he testified that he never read newspapers and "minded his own business."

I can't help thinking that it would be rather nice not to have heard of so many important things. Life for Mr. O'Meara must be very simple and sweet.

Such Innocence Is Extremely Rare

Such innocence is rare at least in these parts. Occasionally we hear of some Tennessee or Kentucky mountaineers, "crackers," who have not heard that the Civil War was over, or have never heard of the World War or the Prohibition amendment, and we smile pityingly.

But after all I am not so sure but what they are better off than we are who keep our noses plunged into morning and evening newspapers in order to keep abreast of matters the knowledge of which [illegible] does not affect us and [illegible].

In New England of course it is different. We have [illegible] almost ferocious [illegible]. I make no doubt that back in the [illegible] farm districts there are many minds equally [illegible] irrelevant information.

Occasionally [illegible] educational [illegible] try out [illegible] information questionnaires on college students or even on older and presumably better informed people.

When the results are published we find almost invariably that although the youngsters have little knowledge of President Benes, Admiral William D. Leahy, Premier Chamberlain, Tom Girdler, Secretary Wallace, John Gielgud, and Lillian D. Wald, their elders are equally at a loss when confronted with the names of Tommy Farr, Harry Richman, Joe DiMaggio, Sally Rand, Malcolm Campbell, Martha Raye, and Lanny Ross.

Old Fashioned Folk Stress Character

It all depends on what you are interested in. Sherlock Holmes, once given a particular piece of information, remarked:

"Now that I know it I shall forget it as soon as possible."

The memory, he held, could hold just so much and the more lumber it tried to accumulate and retain the less useful was the mind.

Providing John O'Meara of Tipperary was a good husband and father, was a good farmer, went to church, paid his taxes, it probably does not matter much whether he votes regularly, or knows the causes of the World War, or is aware of the effect of F. D. R. on the Fascist or Communistic ideas of our friends across the water.

That is why plain, old-fashioned people can still be heard insisting that in education the inculcation of character is more important than culture, which is usually thought of as instruction or information. What the teacher draws out of a personality is more important than what she thrusts in. The practice of a way of living is probably more important to an individual than unrelated information gleaned from Elbert Hubbard.

Universal Craze For Information

But these people are obviously in a minority. There is a universal craze nowadays for information, either drawn from the wood or distilled into digest magazines so that he who runs may read. And a very profitable craze it is, too. We know more than any other generation ever knew. The only trouble, as Artemus Ward remarked, is that so much of it "ain't so."

The ignorance, attained by Mr. O'Meara, of so many interesting things that have rolled over his head for the past twenty years, is probably unattainable for most of us. Information pours in through the hole in the dyke in spite of our desperate thumbs. We can only envy Mr. O'Meara, even if we cannot [illegible] emulate him.

'Betty Co-ed' Established Institution in American College Life

It was was back a century ago that girls and men first attended college together in America. But today you find that charming miss, "Betty Co-ed," everywhere. She's prettily personified, here in Boston, by this first-year Simmons college student, Selma Breslaw of Schenectady, N. Y.

GARY FAMIGLIETTI DOROTHY CONROY MARIAN RAY AL HOLGERSON

Well folks, it's been going on 100 years now! Oberlin college in Ohio started it, in 1837, by admitting girl students as well as men and making all classes co-educational. So here you see two typical 1937 co-eds, doing their bit for dear old Boston university. Blonde Dorothy Conroy of Fall River is coaching Football Player Gary Famiglietti in his signals, and dark-haired Marian Ray of Somerville is telling Al Holgerson that he'll be off her list if he doesn't score at least two touchdowns next Saturday.

The [illegible] League of Massachusetts [illegible] Howard F. Sprague of the Massachusetts General Hospital [illegible] that [illegible] through physicians [illegible] organized medical [illegible] state.

In cross-examination, Robert Dodge, attorney for Mrs. Lesser Hawkridge, president of the league, and Mrs. Caroline C. Davis, forced Dr. Sprague to admit that birth control data was constantly being dispensed by Massachusetts physicians.

Dr. Sprague is a consultant member of the league.

Judge John Rees continued the case of the two women charged with publishing and distributing birth control information to Oct. 6 after Dodge submitted a list of noted Massachusetts physicians advising women on birth control practices.

Both Sprague and Dodge said the law was not violated if the information were given to women in need of medical advice.

About 200 women and several clergymen were present.

Nov. 1 Trial For Simpson

Smiling and fully recovered from his recent operation Edward P. Simpson, pleaded not guilty to five indictments, two of them charging him with the murders of Patrolmen Henry G. Bell and Lawrence E. Murphy of Newton, when arraignment in Middlesex Superior court today.

Judge John E. Swift, on a motion [illegible] Attorney Warren [illegible] bail and ordered the date for trial set for November 1.

Simpson, looking coolly about the packed courtroom, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with armed robbery on August 19, in Watertown; to breaking and entering the Hudson Worsted Company, in Hudson, on February 4, and with conspiracy to steal on the same date. Simpson will remain at East Cambridge jail until [illegible] to trial.

Orders Heat Turned On

Richard Olney, director of the state division [illegible] today affirmed that owners of apartments must turn on the heat whenever it is necessary to the proper or customary use of the building.

The statement was made in response to numerous complaints and demands for information by tenants during the past week.

Olney pointed out that under provisions of section 14 of Chapter 186 of the General Laws the landlord is obliged to turn on the heat when cold spells arrive or he is liable to a $100 fine or six months imprisonment.

THEY LIKE HER

Her college boy friend who dates her on the campus and does the Susie Q with her at "frat" dances has watched her change through the years.

Does he like her? We asked some of the boys.

Leland Potter, a Boston University senior, in discussing the subject up and said:

"She is in a class all by herself. Constantly changing. BUT, we all look forward to dates with the sweet little darling."

Eddie Graham of Oak Park, Ill., a senior at the same institution and a football halfback, thinks thusly about Miss Co-ed:

"She's like a clock, she changes with the times. As time goes on does the woman. She's a great little adjuster with time."

Endeavour I Skill Tested

On the proved seamanship of Cap. "Ned" Heard and his crew of 19 professional British seamen today clung hopes for the safety of the racing sloop Endeavour I, which parted her towline during a raging gale off Nantucket lightship nine days ago as four coast guard vessels returned to port.

If Endeavour I was able to weather the gale, and started for England under her own sail, as many optimistic seamen believed, she may arrive home within a week. However such a journey depends on winds and calm seas.

Cutter Off to Aid Injured Seaman

The coast guard cutter Chelan today raced to aid an injured seaman aboard the Boston fish dragger, Maria Stella, 35 miles east of Cape Cod, on receipt of an SOS from the dragger's captain.

William Goietche of Gloucester suffered a crushed chest when the flywheel of the ship's winch flew off and struck him.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Alice Dixon Bond

Guest writer of the Girl About Town column today is Alice Dixon Bond, president of the Professional Women's Club, director of the Alumnae College of Mount Holyoke and lecturer on books.

There is one thing which the life of a Talking Book Reviewer is not and that is DULL!

You remember the man who, reading the dictionary, was asked how he enjoyed it.

ALICE DIXON BOND

"It is interesting enough," he replied, "but it changes the subject pretty often."

So it is with a reviewer of books. It is amazing how you can skip around the world in a few hours of reading.

One morning last summer I traveled to the Balearic Island of Ibiza, where, in the little town of Santa Eulalia, I watched the fragrant smoke from the hickory logs mount into a cloudless sky. I heard the [illegible] rush of the waves on a sandy beach, and saw an old fisherman poise his spear and [illegible] breakfast from the Mediterranean.

Fierce Loves and Fierce Hatred Shown

I went back to the eternal [illegible] years of life as it has been lived right there beside the "wine dark seas" as Homer called it. The people slowly became my friends. I delighted in them as did Elliot Paul. I loved the glamor and their peace, their fierce loves and fiercer hatreds, their child-like qualities and [illegible] philosophies.

I'll never forget [illegible] I [illegible] in the morning [illegible] his brother open it again just one hour later.

Then [illegible] Elliot [illegible] war [illegible] horror [illegible] unprepared and innocent [illegible] of Santa Eulalia . . . and my blood ran cold with the terror of it, my heart was wrung with the pity of it. In five short hours I had seen and felt "The Life and Death of a Spanish Town."

Cripple's Pen Leaves Fascinating Heritage

In the afternoon I went to visit the Day family. You remember the [illegible] brother Clarence? He was crippled with arthritis for 35 years before his recent death. But crippled or not he has through the subtleties of his pen, taken the world into his home and allowed it to meet his strong-minded but wholly fascinating father and mother. His last series, "Life With Mother," I found was just as exciting as "Life With Father," which was published in magazines before it came out in book form.

Dorothy Parker, humorist, once said that everyone who has had a father and mother should read these books, and as I chuckled I thanked the dauntless, unselfish spirit of Clarence Day for sharing such a father and mother.

After dinner that evening I embarked for England and tried to "Recapture the Moon" with Sylvia Thompson's bruised little heroine. Here I found sophistication and humor, neurosis and courage, frustration and fulfillment cleverly interwoven.

As I closed the book in the wee hours of the morning I thought: There is no finer place for the study of human nature than in literature for here you see all round a character; you know his innermost feelings, his unspoken thoughts, you know not only what others say of him behind his back, but what they think of him.

Human Contacts Equal Literary Ones

But a talking reviewer does much more than just read. After you've "bookily" journeyed far or near, are filled with the drabness or glamour of the past or the wonder or boredom of the present, as the case may be, after you've met your Scarlett O'Haras and Rhet Butlers, you then tell the world about it.

Last year I talked well over 200 times throughout New England. The human contacts more than rival the literary ones and when a woman comes up at the conclusion to say:

"What you said about the 'Vein of Iron' in Ellen Glasgow's book . . . that indomitable courage which stiffens under adversity . . . has helped me to solve a problem that has lived with me for a long time." Then I feel that I can go on. Then the humble reviewer forgets about lunch, forgets there is a train to catch and another lecture that evening and a book to read before morning. Forgets because here is the reward for it all . . . human responsiveness to human need.

Skip Europe, Warns Bugs

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The Legion proved one thing It's easier to march up Fifth avenue than to cross it.

We approve of the Legion's declaration of emancipation from the slavery of European propaganda of any kind. We should be as independent as a hog on ice. And as free of wires and apron strings as a barn floating down the Mississippi.

History has proved that the United States and a turpentined cat can both get to their destinations by themselves. We don't need any more help than a boy with a lollypop.

We wouldn't get it if we did. We just went through a depression all by our lonesome. Relief boats sail only from west to east.

How FIRST NATIONAL STORES Homemakers' Service Department Aids You in Buying and Preparing Food

This department, of which Imogene Wolcott is director, provides without cost, advice on planning menus that are different, foods for children, foods for husbands engaged in various types of work, meal time surprises, meals in a minute, more food for your money, luncheon parties and easier entertaining. Over 20,000 women take advantage of this service annually. Information is obtainable simply by writing First National Stores, Homemakers' Service Dept., 5 Middlesex Ave., Somerville, Mass.

Mrs. Wolcott supervises recipes used in preparation of Finast products to insure the homemade flavor and quality for which they are famous. Because Mrs. Wolcott is in constant touch with all departments, she is able to furnish timely information to those who write and to radio listeners. She also serves as lecturer before women's clubs, lodges and church organizations and is hostess to visitors to the world's largest food warehouse.

Martha Lee Defines Rules for Menu Planning

THREE PHASES LEND VIGOR TO APPETITES

Esthetic, Economic and Nutritional Values Are Important for All Meals

By MARTHA LEE

What foods shall we serve for breakfast? For lunch? For dinner? For the bridge club? For guests? These are perhaps the most perplexing problems confronting the modern homemaker.

Before taking up the rules of menu planning we must bear in mind three things. These daily menus must have appetite appeal—meet the nutritional requirements of the various members of the family—and correspond to an expenditure in proportion to the family income.

These three phases we shall define as the artistic or esthetic, nutritional and economic. In this order we shall formulate our rules.

ESTHETIC—Plan menus for variety, interest and appetite appeal. Cook foods well. Serve them attractively and correctly.

ECONOMIC—Systematic menu planning aids marketing. If strict economy is necessary, plan menus to use the cheaper of two or more foods that fill nutritional needs.

NUTRITIONAL—Plan the day's menu—breakfast, lunch, dinner—as a whole to include the following foods required by each person daily for a normal diet.

Menu patterns or guides are offered as an aid in planning merely to show combinations of food and approximate amounts. Variations are necessary to suit individual needs of members of a family.

BREAKFAST MENU PATTERN

1 glass milk
1 glass orange juice
1 egg
2 slices toast with butter.

Add to this according to needs:

Cereals and cream; or bacon; or jelly, marmalade, honey; or additional fruit.

LUNCHEON MENU PATTERN

1 glass of milk to drink (or a milk soup, a chowder, a scalloped or creamed wheat or vegetable, cottage cheese, a custard, ice cream).

1 serving fruit (beverage, cocktail, salad or dessert)

1 serving vegetable other than potato (salads good)

1 serving starchy or sweet food (potatoes, rice, macaroni, or a dessert such as a pudding or cake or cookies in addition to bread)

One of these dishes served hot, if possible.

A fruit (first course, salad or dessert)

A protein or tissue-building food (cheese, eggs, meat or meat substitute)

A starch food (potatoes, rice, macaroni, desserts)

2 vegetables other than potatoes (one preferably a green leafy vegetable)

Bread and butter

A beverage (milk or fruit juice (milk may be served in soup)

Supplementary foods to meet the individual's needs and provide any of the day's requirements not furnished by breakfast or lunch.

At Home With Home-Made Pie

Hood's Process Keeps Milk Cold

One of the new developments used to keep milk cold from the cow to the customer is an ice-making machine recently installed in H. P. Hood & Sons big dairy in Charlestown.

This machine makes thin, curved ice-flakes known as frozen water ribbons. The new ice, which takes the place of the chips off the old block, packs more closely around the bottles in the cases, maintains a lower temperature and lasts longer. All of which helps guarantee a still more perfectly protected bottle of Hood's milk for Mrs. Consumer.

SALAD a la UNA MERKEL

Solid head of lettuce
Few sprigs fresh watercress
Small, solid tomato
1 heart of celery
Few tiny strawberry beets
Small heart of crisp romaine
Section of avocado scooped with parisian cutter

Chop hard-boiled egg keeping yolk and white separate.

Lightly rub [illegible] of [illegible] of lettuce, [illegible] shredded tomato [illegible] watercress.

½ teaspoon Bell's seasoning
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the onion, parsley and celery in the fat for a few minutes. Add the rice and seasonings and stir until well mixed and hot and use as the stuffing in chicken, duck, or other fowl, or in boned cuts of meat. Any kind of rice, white, brown or wild rice may be used in stuffing.

Kitchen Charm

Rout the Insects By Using Soap

When we are making a general house cleaning it often means—in fact, always should mean—that all drawers and cupboards are turned out and every shelf scrubbed with soap and water and every chest wiped out first with a soapy cloth and afterwards with a dry one.

This will keep away all insects which may be determining to hide in a corner to lay some eggs. They hate soap.

New England Dishes Reverenced This Season

THANKSGIVING FEAST OUGHT TO BE SIMPLE

Old Recipe With "Sass" Now Being Made Modern

There is magic in the word "Thanksgiving." Mere mention of this word conjures a vision of our Pilgrim forefathers returning through the primeval forest to a feast prepared of foods native to New England.

All over this great land of ours homemakers turn to early New England dishes in preparation for this feast. It is a fitting tribute to these stalwart ancestors that we enjoy serving food for which they gave thanks on the first Thanksgiving.

Get Rid of Excess FAT with this SAFE DRUGLESS Treatment

Do you feel as though you have a rubber tire around your stomach? Do your fat arms distress you? Is your face pudgy looking because of surplus flesh? Does that layer of fat across your back and shoulders classify you as "fat and forty?" If so, you'll be interested in WATE-OFF, the pure vegetable tablets for weight reduction. WATE-OFF is guaranteed safe and harmless, and yet is amazingly effective, as testified to by thousands of users, many of whom gratefully report reductions of 5 pounds a week and even more, and with great benefit to their health and general well-being.

WATE-OFF is a compound of pure vegetable matter and herbs. It is absolutely free from drugs and so guaranteed. It contains no dinitrophenol or other dangerous drugs, no reducing salts or other harmful laxatives that physic the system and leave the skin loose and flabby. WATE-OFF, on the contrary, enables you to take off weight—gently—gradually—without the slightest harm or danger. Instructions say: Take 3 or 4 tablets a day, before meals, then eat your hearty fill. "Results" say users "are simply amazing." Unsightly fat seems to melt away like magic, leaving no saggy flabby skin or broken-down tissue.

You've seen WATE-OFF advertised in Pictorial Review, Physical Culture and other leading magazines at $2.45. Now we offer it to you for only $1.19 with the understanding that if you are not satisfied with the results, you have the privilege of returning the empty carton and we will return your money.

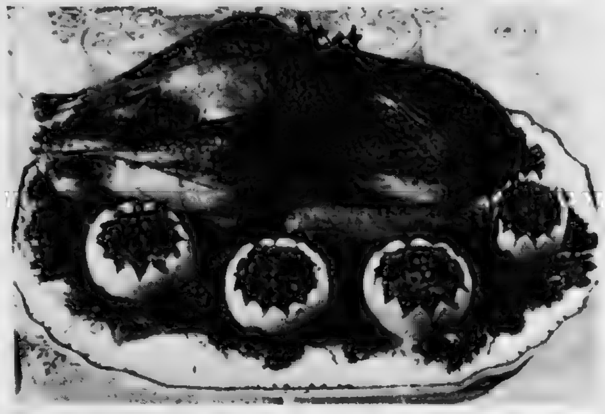
This Makes a Neat Thanksgiving Table



A FORMAL THANKSGIVING table for a family dinner [illegible]

Turkey Needs No Garnishing, But Cranberries Add Relish

A roasted turkey or chicken or goose or duck is such a handsome thing in itself that it really requires no special garnishing. A few crisp sprigs of parsley or water cress are a perfect way to set off the golden brown beauty of a well-roasted bird.

Sometimes an extra appetizer or relish-type of dish gives an added air of festivity or hospitality—and flavor. For such occasions are these garnishes intended.

CRANBERRIES FIRST

Cranberry sauce, cranberry jelly or cranberry relish are garnish "firsts," especially at the holiday season. Any of these may be put into dainty little paper containers which are placed on the platter perhaps among the sprigs of parsley. They add color as well as a delightful flavor contrast.

Canned peach halves are even more colorful than pear halves. They may be treated like the pears or they may be heated briefly in the syrup in which they were canned. They must of course be cooked lest they lose their attractive shape.

PINEAPPLE SLICES

Pineapple slices are always good. For a special occasion mash and season boiled sweet potatoes, pile them right on top of slices of pineapple and then top with half a marshmallow. Put these sweet potato mounds into the oven to heat and to brown the marshmallows. This is a grand way to serve the potatoes as well as to garnish the bird.

With garnishes and whatnot on the outside the menfolk will like best the bird itself and what is used on the inside. Oyster stuffing always gets masculine applause.

8 cups Bond bread crumbs
1 pint oysters
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 egg, slightly beaten

Wash oysters thoroughly. Blend all ingredients and fill into the turkey.

BROWN BACON FOR FLAVORING

These are dressing days, when many an inexperienced cook is struggling to achieve a triumph in flavory dressing.

In preparing a bread dressing dice and brown bacon together with the onion before adding to bread crumbs.

Moxie Refreshes After Housework

When the housework proves a trifle wearisome, or when the heat of cooking has made the kitchen warm, step to your refrigerator for an ice cold glass of sparkling Moxie. It is wonderfully reviving and cooling and has that clean aftertaste that satisfies.

Take a tip from the thousands of men folk who step out for a Moxie every day when they feel a little tired or thirsty. It is New England's own beverage, the drink OK'd by millions.

Satisfying Salads

The new vogue for salad dressings is "contrast" and you'll find it in both taste and texture with this banana peanut butter mayonnaise. [illegible] and 3 tablespoons peanut butter. If too thick thin with a little [illegible]. Makes about 1½ [illegible]

MEALS SPED BY GLENWOOD

Any woman who has the responsibility of getting the indispensable "three square meals a day" needs the speed, the flexibility and dependability that only gas cooking can give.

The new Glenwood gas ranges bring out every advantage of this finest cooking method. Turn the handle and the new "Dual Thrift" top burners supply instantaneous heat. Set the oven heat control at the temperature needed and your baking or roasting takes care of itself. And of course gas supplies the quick searing heat so necessary to keep the juices in broiled foods.

These are only a few of the features that are making Glenwood Gas Ranges so popular. If you could see them perform you'd understand why women prefer to cook with gas.

GINGERBREAD WAS LIKED BY PURITANS

The Father of our Country liked gingerbread, and we still find gingerbread being served with "sass." Here is an old time recipe made modern.

WASHINGTON GINGERBREAD WITH APPLE SAUCE

1 cup molasses
4 tablespoons Hood's butter
½ cup Hood's sour cream
1 level teaspoon soda
1 egg
2½ cups flour (pastry)
2 teaspoons ginger
A little mace
Dash of salt

Mix molasses and melted butter. Add beaten egg. Dissolve soda in cream. Add to molasses. Sift in flour with spices and salt last. Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees F.

When done split gingerbread through the middle lengthwise. Combine apple sauce (fresh or canned) with beaten egg white and spread on bottom layer. Replace top layer and serve with additional whipped apple sauce or with whipped cream.

SALLY LUNN

2½ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup Whiting's butter
½ cup Domino granulated sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
1 cup Whiting's milk

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter until soft. Add sugar gradually and beat well. Add eggs and blend well. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time.

'76 RECIPES ORIGINATED BY YANKEES

Valued for Their Sterling Common Sense and Nutritional Value

[illegible]

SYLLABUB

1 pint Whiting's cream
½ cup white wine
Grated yellow rind of 1 lemon
2 egg whites
4 tablespoons Domino superfine powdered sugar

[illegible]

COLONIAL STEAK PIE

[illegible] the dish, put in a little water and lay in the steaks with a lump of butter on each. Put in sliced potatoes and onions if you please. Cover with a lid of paste and send to the oven. A dozen fine oysters and their liquor would be an improvement without much additional expense.

MARTHA WASHINGTON'S CRAB SOUP

Fifteen crabs thrown alive into boiling water. Boil until done, then pick the meat up fine. Put into 2 quarts of water in which 1 pound of middling [illegible] has been boiled until done. Heat 1 pint of rich milk and stir in the well beaten yolks of 2 eggs. Pour into the boiling crab soup but do not let it come to a boil any more. Cook 5 minutes. Season with salt and cayenne pepper, pour into tureen and serve hot.

Cooked in Shell

Cooking eggs in the shell takes more time than poaching, of course, because the shell is a poor heat-conductor, and the heat cannot penetrate the egg itself so readily. But again, you don't let the water boil after you put in the eggs.

Put 'Coaxing' Into Salads---That's the Real Trick

NEW RECIPES FOR DRESSING ARE POPULAR

Head Lettuce, Cheese and Tomatoes Make the Most Tempting Mixtures

Keep the answer to [illegible] if you wish but [illegible] are salads really popular [illegible] family or [illegible] you coax [illegible] eat them? [illegible] the coaxing into the salad dressing, that's the trick.

Head Lettuce and Tomatoes with Roquefort Cheese Dressing [illegible] a luncheon salad [illegible] remember. Mix 4 tablespoons cheese to a paste with 2 tablespoons butter. Add well seasoned French Dressing until the cheese mixture becomes soft and smooth [illegible] easy to serve.

For the perfect French Dressing try this recipe. Put into a bottle:

1 teaspoon Gulden's prepared mustard
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon Domino granulated sugar
½ teaspoon grated onion, or a sliver of a clove of garlic.
And dissolve in:
1 tablespoon boiling water
Add:
½ cup salad oil
¼ to 1-3 cup vinegar or lemon juice (according to your taste).

Cucumbers for Salad

Cucumbers are more attractive and more easily digested if the peeling is left on. Cucumbers sliced and put into ice water for an hour will crisp nicely for salads. Salt added to the water will toughen them.

Fish Is an Economical, Healthy Food for Family

NOW IS SOLD FROZEN AND READY TO USE

Past Woes In Cleaning Are Wiped Out by Modern Methods

The homemaker who would spend her food allowance to the best advantage and provide the greatest variety of culinary delights to her family should learn to know the value and qualities of fresh, frozen and canned fish and shellfish in our markets.

For fish, whether fresh, frozen, or canned, is a healthful wholesome and economical food.

The fact that salt water fish and shellfish contain more iodine than any other common food is an added reason for using them frequently.

Perhaps in no other single article of food has the homemaker in years past encountered more difficulty real or imaginary, than in the preparation cooking, and serving of fish foods.

SCALLOPED FISH AND MUSHROOMS

1 1-3 cups fresh Bond bread crumbs
2 eggs, beaten
4 cups scalded Whiting's milk
1 cup canned or fresh sauteed mushrooms
2 cups canned or fresh steamed fish
2 teaspoons grated onion
1¼ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup Spry

Add the eggs and scalded milk to the bread crumbs. Then add the mushrooms, which have been sliced, the shredded fish, onion, salt, pepper, and fat. Pour into a greased casserole. Set the casserole in a pan of luke-warm water and bake in a moderate oven of 350 F. for about 1 hour or until a silver knife inserted in the center of the fish comes out clean. Serves 6.

But today the housekeeper can buy fresh, canned and frozen fish which have been cleaned, boned, and made ready for immediate use. No fishy odors, no disagreeable cleaning to be done.

Fish comes to our markets in many forms. You may purchase a fresh fish and have your fish dealer clean it for you or you may buy one of the many kinds of boned fillets which we find in the market today.

Demand Grows For La Touraine

The demand for La Touraine coffee grows steadily year after year, in New England, statistics reveal. Naturally there is a reason. This fine old coffee, now on the market for over 35 years is a blend of the finest coffees the world produces.

The La Touraine Company is anxious to please all tastes and so they sell it in three popular grinds. There is the regular grind, for folks who still think there is no better coffee maker than the percolator. Then they make a special grind for drip coffee-makers and it is also sold in the bean, which the grocer will grind fresh to his customer's order.

Cabbage Is a Fine Tissue Builder And Is Best for Winter Menus

Below you will see several excellent everyday simple salads for midwinter menus and all of them feature the important vegetable cabbage. Your family will enjoy every one of them.

CABBAGE AND PICKLES SLAW

3 cups sliced or shredded cabbage
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2 teaspoons sugar
4 tablespoons India relish
Mayonnaise

Mix cabbage, salt pepper, sugar and India relish. Chill. Just before serving add enough mayonnaise to moisten.

BRAZILIAN CABBAGE SALAD

1 medium can Puritan Red Kidney Beans.
2 cups coarsely shredded cabbage.
3 tablespoons India Relish
3 tablespoons tomato ketchup.
3 tablespoons mayonnaise.
½ teaspoon salt.

Place beans in sieve and rinse sauce from them. Drain chill and add remaining ingredients. Toss together lightly and chill. Serve on a bed of crisp lettuce and garnish with additional mayonnaise. Accompanied by a bowl of soup and whole wheat bread this salad forms a delightful luncheon.

Stuffed Heart Is Romero Choice

Ceasar Romero of 20th Century-Fox prefers stuffed calf's heart.

1 calf's heart
½ pound lamb liver
1 cup Bond krums
1 diced onion
2 tablespoons bacon fat
Sage, salt and pepper

After thoroughly cleaning the inside of the heart, put in to soak in cold salt water for one hour. Parboil the liver in hot water seasoned with a bay leaf. How a Bride Entertains With a Formal Dinner

FEAST MUST BE SMART, YET GAY, MODERN

Silver, Glassware Must Set the Key Range for Every Course at Meals

The bride gives a formal dinner! It must be smart yet in the modern mode; it must have a gay and casual air. The new hostess chooses her people, eight or ten congenial friends.

She has an eye to diverting conversation to a table or two of bridge afterward.

Then the table beautifully set with the smart new rule of harmony, china, glass and silver in the same design. A subtle effect of symmetry and charm quickly felt. Place cards in small silver holders or on the folded napkins laid on the service plates.

USE THIN GLASSES

Service plates of fine china in the same design as the silver. Slender stemmed water goblets and wine glasses echoing the design. And flat silver setting the key, ranged in orderly sequence, moving toward the plate—for oysters, soup, fish, meat course, and salad, the dessert fork and spoon to be brought in with the dessert plate. And at the center—a crystal vase or a silver bowl with a pair of candelabra.

GUESTS ARRIVE

And now the dinner itself. Rigid formality has gone with a past era. Flexibility, informal formality, is the modern mode. The guests arrive. They are admitted by a servant or by the host. When all have come—"dinner is served."

The dinner is served—a good dinner with hot dishes really hot, cold dishes really cold. It progresses from course to course. With the salad cigarettes are passed. At the end the hostess rises, a signal for her guests to follow.

How to Prepare Coffee for 50

Put 1½ pounds La Touraine coffee in a cheesecloth or muslin bag which is large enough to hold twice the amount. Drop bag into large kettle or boiler containing 3 gallons boiling water. Cover tightly, reduce heat and [illegible] 6 to 10 minutes. Remove bag and keep coffee hot for serving. Makes 60 cups.

Screen Bride Presents Favorite Casserole for Winter Months

There's nothing more welcome for a warm summer evening than a large dish of Chicken en Casserole! Real home-cooked chicken prepared in the good, old Southern manner! Chicken prepared this way is delicious and no matter how much you have, it always vanishes almost immediately and leaves guests asking for more! This is the advice of Jeanette MacDonald whose favorite recipe follows:

CHICKEN EN CASSEROLE

White meat of one chicken
1 cup of mushrooms
1 cup of shell macaroni
1 tablespoon of diced onion
3 cups of chicken gravy
1 teaspoon parsley

Dice cooked white meat of chicken. Add cup of mushrooms, cooked shell macaroni and stir into well seasoned gravy. Stir, adding diced onion. Put into baking dish, top with dropped biscuit dumplings, and bake in medium oven for half an hour.

MAKE MORNING MEALS TASTY

Spring mornings, bright and crisp, give an extra dividend of pleasure if they are the occasion for pancakes or waffles for breakfast. Here are some methods for the preparation of these delectable foods.

Batter Cakes

Mix 1 cup sifted cornmeal, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon salt. Add 2 cups buttermilk and 2 eggs. Beat vigorously. Cook on a hot greased griddle. Serve with maple syrup and butter.

Corn Waffles

2 cups flour
2 tsp. baking powder
2 tbsp. Spry
2 tsp. salt
2 eggs
1½ cups evaporated milk
¾ cup corn
6 strips minced bacon

Beat eggs yolks, add corn and milk and sifted dry ingredients. Fold in bacon and stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake on waffle iron.

Rice Griddle Cakes

2 cups flour
¼ tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking powder
1 cup or more as needed of Hood's milk
1 tbsp. Domino sugar
1 tbsp. of Spry
1 egg
1 cup cook rice

Mix dry ingredients, add milk, shortening, eggs and rice. Beat well and fry on hot griddle.

Cool Days Call For Quick Breads

Cool days and snappy nights seem to bring requests from the family for some hot bread and butter. Mothers can satisfy this desire without fear of digestive disturbances, since nutritionalists have proven that hot breads are just as easily assimilated as others provided care has been used in selecting shortenings.

PRESTO MAKES BAKING EASY

Presto makes good baking easy because it is self rising flour; that means the right amount of baking powder and salt are already mixed in, two things which many find most difficult to do correctly.

PRESTO THREE LAYER CAKE

2-3 cup Spry
1½ cups Domino sugar
3 eggs and 1 egg yolk
1 cup Hood's milk
3 cups sifted Presto
½ tsp. Burnett's flavoring
½ tsp. Burnett's almond flavoring

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually. Add whole eggs and egg yolk one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add sifted Presto alternately with milk to which flavorings have been added. Put in three greased layer cake tins and bake in moderate oven (375 Deg. F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Frost with any desired icing.

PEP ACQUIRED FOR DAY'S TOIL BY BREAKFAST

Dried Fruits Fit in Scheme; Require Little Time to Prepare

Practically everyone could do with a little more pep and energy during the morning hours. The most obvious way to get that extra energy is to eat a substantial breakfast.

Dried fruits fit in perfectly with the breakfast scheme because they can be washed the day before and require very little time for preparation in the morning. Furthermore they are an excellent energy [illegible].

Raisins have always been a popular addition to cooked cereals. The suggested proportions are ½ cup of raisins to every four servings of cereal. Rinse them and add 10 minutes before the cereal has finished cooking.

Other dried fruits may be added after they have been cooked and sweetened according to taste. Add ½ cup of the sliced fruit to one cup of the dry cereal and allow 10 minutes for the fruit to heat through and blend its flavor with the cereal.

In preparing fruited cereal it's a good plan to cook an additional amount and mold what is left over in a glass dish and a day or so later serve it fried. Dip the slices of cereal in an egg and milk mixture like that used in making French toast. Then roll in flour and fry in butter or deep fat.

Topping

- ½ cup walnut meats
- ½ cup blanched almonds
- ½ cup Domino Old Fashioned brown sugar (packed firm)
- ¼ cup white sugar
- ½ cup cocoanut (shredded)
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon Burnett's vanilla
- 2 eggs

"...not without Care
'tis beauty lasting"

Dandruff in its many forms is one of the major causes of an unattractive coiffure. Its interference in the normal functioning of the scalp results, not only in dry, brittle lustreless or oily, stringy, lifeless hair and eventually abnormal hair loss, but in the destroying entirely of the natural sheen and softness that is the crowning glory of healthy hair.

THOMAS treatment as used for the past 18 years by over 1600 men each day in our 45 offices is available to women in an entirely separate and private department. Call today for a free hair and scalp examination.

PUPILS NEED LOTS OF FOOD FOR VITALITY

Menus Require Careful Planning to Guard Children's Health

In order to preserve all the health and vitality that vacation days have brought menus for the children will need careful planning.

If the child carries his lunch a hot drink or main dish should be provided. This is simplified today because of the many well designed containers that will keep food or liquid hot and appetizing till time for serving. Home lunches should include one hot dish—always. Here are some that meet with the approval of young appetites.

CASSEROLE OF LAMB AND VEGETABLES

Seasoned flour
2 medium onions peeled and [illegible]
4 tbsp. Spry
4 cups cabbage cut in 1-inch [illegible]
1½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. Domino granulated [illegible]
⅛ tsp. pepper
2½ cups canned tomatoes
1½ cups hot water

Roll the lamb in flour seasoned with salt and pepper in the proportions of ½ cup flour, ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Then saute it in the skillet with the onion in the hot Spry until a golden brown. Arrange with the cabbage in a large covered casserole with the salt, pepper, tomatoes and hot water. Cover and bake in a moderate oven until the meat is tender.

Salads for Health

Winter, of all seasons, is the time for the bountiful and frequent service of salads. They counteract the effects of too heavy foods, they give sparkle and interest to any meal they grace.

Hints to Young on Boiling

To boil. To cook in boiling liquid that continually bubbles. In boiling there is no particular advantage in boiling hard except where the materials is to be kept apart by the rapid movement of the water as in cooking rice and the macaroni products. Even then too rapid boiling is not advised. To boil hard needlessly wastes fuel.

To bring to boiling point. Or to heat to boiling means to heat until the whole surface of the water is covered with bubbles. Water is not boiling when the bubbles form only around the edge.

To parboil. To boil a food until partially cooked, from one-third to one-half the normal time. The cooking is usually finished by another method.

BUBBLES RISE

To simmer. To cook in hot liquid that stays below the boiling point. At the simmering point, tiny bubbles rise slowly to the surface and break, raising a little steam. It is at this temperature that eggs are cooked and meats too for stews and for creaming. (This term is often explained by saying

To bake. To cook by dry heat. When applied to meats the term is changed to roasting.

To baste. To moisten the meat or other food while cooking to prevent drying of the surface. The liquid used may be water, fat drippings in the pan, or a combination of water and fat. Formerly all meats were basted during cooking. Now practically the only meats so treated are chicken, turkey and lamb. The basting is done by dipping up the juices from the pan with a long handled spoon and pouring them over the meat at 30 to 40 minute intervals during the roasting period. Or melted fat may be used, pouring it from a container over the meat.

USE LITTLE FAT

To braise. Method used in meat cookery. The meat is first browned in a hot receptacle in a small amount of fat, then a small amount of liquid—water, milk, cream, or meat stock—is added, the vessel is covered and cooking is continued slowly until meat is tender. Swiss steak is a common example of this method.

To broil. To cook by direct heat, to grill. As in broiling steaks, chops, tomatoes, etc.

To fricassee. To stew or braise in stock, a slow method of cooking applied to game, poultry and some meats.

To fry. To cook in deep, hot fat.

To grill. Same as broil.

BAKE IN DISH

To scallop. To bake in a dish applied to the combining of cooked meat or vegetables or both in a casserole or baking dish with sauce, usually a cream sauce. Scallop shells were first used for this kind of cooking and are still used for [illegible] and suppers.

To sear. To brown the surface of meat by the application of intense heat. May be done in broiler or in pan over direct heat.

To [illegible] casserole or [illegible]

To steam. To cook [illegible] with the material separated from a small amount of water which does not touch the food. As in steaming vegetables, puddings and brown bread.

To steep. To allow substances to stand in liquid to extract flavor as in steeping tea.

Plain Wafers Easy to Make

2 cups flour
1½ cups Hood's milk
4 tbsp. Hood's melted butter
3 eggs
4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt

Sift dry ingredients together. Separate eggs, beat yolks until light, stir the milk into them and add the dry ingredients. Beat well and then add melted butter. Lastly fold in egg whites beaten stiff. Beat until batter is very light and bake on hot waffle iron. Serve with butter and syrup.

How to Cook Meals for Big Groups Told

Breathes their a woman to whom quantity recipes are not a bit of a puzzle? Most of us at some time or other are appointed to the hospitality committee or made chairman of the church supper or the annual club luncheon and must produce food—good food—to serve 200, 300 or 500 hungry people. It's staggering after the daily preparation of food for 3, 4 or 6 people to be suddenly confronted with this problem.

First, good organization is the secret of success. Divide the work among enough people so that no one carries more than her share of responsibility.

If the meal is being served to make money, the menu must be planned carefully. It must also be planned with careful consideration for the equipment, working space and serving dishes. Serve a simple meal, the sort you would serve at home, but be sure the recipes work in quantity.

Old Fashioned Yankee Slaw Dressing

2 quarts Hood's milk
3 ounces flour
¾ ounce salt
1 ounce mustard
½ pound Domino granulated [illegible]
2 cups vinegar
4 ounces Hood's butter
8 eggs
4 gallons (4 medium heads) cabbage, shredded

Scald three-fourths of milk. Measure and sift flour, salt and mustard together and make a smooth paste with remaining cold milk. Add to hot milk and cook thoroughly. Heat vinegar and add slowly to dressing after it has thickened. Beat egg with sugar and add to dressing; stir while adding. Add butter. Pour hot dressing over cabbage. Serve slaw hot or chill and serve cold. Serves 56.

Rhode Island Clam Chowder

2½ quarts water
6 ounces salt pork, diced
6 (1 pound) onions, large, diced
8 (2 pounds) potatoes, cubed, medium size
2 ounces flour
4 ounces Hood's butter
1 quart Hood's light cream, scalded
1½ ounces salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Add clams to water and bring to a boil. Drain, reserving clam stock. Cut off firm parts of clams and chop fine; combine with soft parts. Try out salt pork, add onions and cook slowly until tender, covering pot to retain moisture and prevent onions from browning. Combine clam stock, potatoes and onion mixture and cook 10 to [illegible] minutes or until potatoes are done. Blend flour with butter, add cream and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. [illegible] Serves 24 [illegible]

Fruit Salad With Honey Dressing

Any favored combination of fresh or canned fruits may be used. Drain the fruits well and cut into cubes. Chill thoroughly. Serve on lettuce leaves with a dressing made by blending ½ cup strained honey, ¼ cup lemon juice and ½ teaspoon gelatine softened with ¼ cup cold water, then dissolved over boiling water. Beat well to incorporate the honey thoroughly and fold in 1½ cups of whipped cream.

Convenient Dishpan

A small shelf built beneath the drain board will make a convenient place for the dishpan. If two shelves are built in the space one may hold the cleaning materials and keep the top of the sink and drainboard clear for working purposes.

A&P FOOD STORES ESTABLISHED 1859

WE HAVE A REPUTATION FOR BEING FUSSY MEAT BUYERS. We are not content with simply going through the usual government inspection—our meats are judged by how they were raised and fed, how they were dressed and cut . . . if all is not done according to A & P's high standards they are not accepted by our fussy "judges."

NO WASTE OR USELESS BONE. In our central meat warehouse the properly aged meats are expertly carved into "store cuts" . . . free from excess bone, fat or waste. It's your assurance of getting the most for your money.

EACH PIECE IS PROPERLY AGED . . . perfected so as to give the several million families we buy meat for the utmost in flavor and tenderness. This is another fussy step in A & P's guarantee to give you Top Quality, Always.

CORRECT TEMPERATURES stand guard over the goodness of our meats from the time we receive them to the moment you buy them. The most modern refrigeration methods are used. Even our delivery trucks are fully enclosed, with a refrigeration system to protect our meats.

CLEANLINESS . . . is important from the beginning to the end. Every step from the warehouse to you is done with the utmost care. Note how clean and neat the modern refrigerated show cases in your nearby A&P Markets are. They are scrubbed and cleaned often to assure cleanness.

NO WONDER A&P MEATS ARE 'TOP QUALITY' GUARANTEED!

Yes . . . no wonder A & P Meats are "Top Quality Always." In fact, every purchase is guaranteed to satisfy you. This is no idle boast. We buy meats for several millions of families each week, and we can't afford to make a single compromise with quality. Not only high quality but low prices make A&P Meats a temptation to every housewife. Plan to serve A&P Top Quality Meat tonight — you'll find real satisfaction

RICE MUFFINS EASY TO BAKE

We've neglected the "little" cooks for a long while. We are truly sorry and offer our apologies. But you're never too young to learn how to make the delectable rice muffins.

Nor too old, either, if that worries you, because this "batch" is a special, speedy variety that takes the joker right out of the muffin deck, thanks to rice and a mixed metaphor.

We have made the procedure very simple. All Janet has to remember is that the measurements are level. So get out the apron and the necessary utensils.

Here's what you need to make muffins that will please the whole family.

Strike by Capital Possible

Cites Restrictions With Decline in Securities

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Is there danger that capital will go on strike?

This question is suggested by the decline in New York security issues and the weakness in security markets.

And don't make the mistake of thinking that these things are of no concern to you. New securities are issued in order to raise funds for buying plant and equipment. Thus the security markets have a direct bearing upon the capital goods markets, the volume and cost of consumer goods, and the employment of labor.

If a corporation can't buy equipment or build plant as required for economy or the demand for its products, the whole economic life of the nation suffers.

* * *

To understand this, we should first note that capital goods are not merely stored up labor. In addition to labor, it requires the sacrifices of saving and waiting to make machinery and buildings.

Then note that capital and labor have to work together. Without machinery and all that goes with it, where would our standard of living be? How far could labor go alone?

Finally, note that we can't expect capital to work without adequate compensation in the shape of interest on investment, any more than we expect labor to work for less than fair wages. Just as labor has won recognition of this principle by striking, so now it may be that we will have to go through strikes by savers and investors of capital before the importance of a fair reward is learned.

* * *

Today, the sale of new capital issues is badly hurt, which means that the transfer of savings into invested forms of capital goods is stopped.

Many things combine to work this harm, all of which result in the "uncertainty" which is now so prevalent. Uncertainty is the bane of saving and investment.

The tax on undistributed corporate earning handicaps capital. Especially now that the security markets are down, corporations can't pay out so large a part of their surplus earnings as dividends and then proceed to raise capital funds by selling stock to investors. People don't buy stock when markets are falling or highly uncertain.

So corporations are reducing dividends in order to retain cash for capital expenditures.

Unless the thing is checked soon, the stream of savings and investment will be frozen.

Then the capital goods industries will close down, incidentally throwing labor out of employment, and reducing the government's tax revenue.

* * *

The raising of reserve requirements, thus cutting excess reserves, and the President's deflationary talk about rising prices and speculation, had a chilling effect upon security markets.

Especially harmful, because of the shock to the thrifty, has been the President's repeated talk about giving everybody what they want, regardless of what they do to earn it.

* * *

Then there are recent figures showing that in the past twelve months, there has been a large increase in labor cost that has not been offset by an equal increase in labor productivity.

It is fine to have laborers earn more. But they may not earn more when their dollar wages are raised faster than the dollar sales of the business that employs them. If they go too far, either prices of products must rise, bringing higher living costs, or capital must strike for a fair share.

* * *

All this is to say nothing of fears of government competition or political control, discriminatory taxation, and monetary manipulation, now heightened by war fears.

The chief reason for backward building, steel, copper, and machine tool orders, lies in the restrictions on capital. The drastic decline in security markets is closely related.

Fourteen-Year High

Reflecting increased demand, particularly from foreign sources, monthly pig iron production averaged over 3,300,000 tons during the first seven months of this year, and is at the highest level since 1929.

Industrial Output Expected to Hold Gains This Fall

In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistics Company, of New York, currently comments as follows:—

"With both urban and rural purchasing power at high levels, employment and payrolls at recovery peaks, interest rates at abnormally low levels, the banking position strong and the potential demand for numerous products still large, the underlying causes of past depressions are largely absent.

"Industry is now entering its normally active fall season facing a confused but not unfavorable outlook. War threats, lagging tendencies in several basic industries, particularly building, textiles and railroad equipment, sharply declining security prices, and the possibility of an extra session of Congress have tended to dampen sentiment considerably during recent weeks.

"However, at the risk of appearing unduly optimistic, we again express the belief that no important decline in aggregate industrial volumes is in prospect over the balance of 1937, at least. In fact, we believe that fourth quarter industrial production will be moderately better than the comparatively high third quarter levels, even after making allowances for a full seasonal upturn.

"Preliminary estimates for September indicate that the Standard Statistics Company index of industrial production for the month will be in the neighborhood of 97.0 (1926 equals 100). This preliminary figure is slightly below the August index number, but is still more than 7 per cent ahead of year-earlier levels.

"Tentative estimates for the fourth quarter indicate that a number of the leading industries will enjoy at least seasonal improvement and should maintain operations above last year's levels. Industrial production for the current half-year is still expected to be at least 5 per cent ahead of the comparable 1936 period.

"Although steel activity declined sharply because of the Labor Day holiday, prospects for the remainder of the year are favorable. For the first time since last April, a number of steel companies report that orders are about balancing shipments, and there are strong indications that operations will be maintained at a better than 80 per cent rate for some weeks."

Industry Far From Asleep

Achievements Noted In Creating Steady Employment

By B. C. FORBES

Industrial leaders are so constantly criticized that it may be refreshing, for a change, to note some of their worthy achievements.

Consider what the automotive industry has accomplished in recent years in creating steadier employment. It had always been regarded as seasonal, as entailing inevitably high peaks and low valleys of employment.

But able auto minds tackled the problem, advanced the bringing out of new models to the fall, made plans for more even output of parts throughout the year and instituted other steps—with the result that automotive wage earners now enjoy far steadier work.

Dealers, salesmen, others have shared the benefits of this notable improvement in management.

OTHER FIRMS FOLLOW

This example has stimulated various other concerns and industries to inaugurate innovations towards the same desirable end.

Not so long ago the general conviction was that our railroads were doomed to decay. But, thanks to the brains of a few daring executives and railway capitalists, rail transportation is enjoying a new lease of life.

We have all heard about the new streamlined trains, their wonderful speed records, their popularity and, in some cases, their profitableness. But far more has been quietly attained in revolutionizing freight transportation.

The rapidity, regularity, dependability of freight movement between most cities are astoundingly in contrast with old days and old ways. For this railroaders have not yet received adequate recognition.

Think of the advances made in supplying air conditioning—for trains, for offices, for factories, for theatres, for hotels, for restaurants, and more recently, for homes. And infinitely greater achievements are promised.

Refrigeration is another industry which has reflected brainy, energetic, aggressive piloting—all aiding employment.

AVIATION CITED

Hats off to our foremost aviation companies. Americans are the first to furnish transpacific service and have led also in developing regular transatlantic service. Our Pan-American performances likewise have been outstanding.

What of the ingenuity exhibited in stimulating sea travel? "Cruises" were a rarity only recently. They have been built up to the proportions of a not unimportant industry.

* * *

One industry crying aloud for a major operation to regularize employment is building. So irregular is the work provided most building workers that, in order to obtain anything like a reasonable annual income, very high hourly and daily wage rates have ruled, rates far beyond those earned by the vast majority of other wage earners, office workers, shop assistants, etc.

This unfortunate condition has prevented the development of the building boom which has been so urgently needed to round out national prosperity.

* * *

No fair-minded person can subscribe to the wholesale condemnation politicians are so fond of hurling at business and industry. The latter have not been asleep at the switch.

New Washington Jewelry Store in Fitchburg

Fitchburg, Sept. 22—With Mayor Robert E. Greenwood and other dignitaries as guests, New England's oldest credit jewelry house—the Washington Jewelry Company—will open another link in its chain of stores here Saturday.

This newest store, to be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies, is located at 379 Main street, in the heart of the city's retail district and is styled throughout in ultra modern appointments.

The store will carry a wide assortment of nationally famous makes of watches, diamonds, jewelry, radios, dishes and glassware. It will have the most modernly equipped optical department.

Gives Up 6 Children

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 22 (AP)—Mother of eight and expecting another, 35-year-old Mina Mason cheerfully gave away six of her children today because, she said:

There were no tears as Mrs. Mason came to county court to sign away her brood to various orphanages.

"I'm happy, I'm very glad," she said.

"They're all I have, but I can't keep them any longer. I can't feed them."

Since her husband went to New Mexico last March in search of work, Mrs. Mason said, she has heard from him but once. Her only income has been from relief.

Patrolman Lorenz Katz found a five-year-old boy wandering alone at 32nd street and Fifth avenue. Asked if he were lost the youngster replied:

"No, I'm not lost. I'm just looking for my mother."

Crossing Gates Tear Off Auto Top

After a close brush with tragedy Mrs. Grace E. Sweet of Elm street, Stoneham, sent her automobile to a repair shop to have a new top put on today.

She narrowly escaped being struck by a northbound Boston & Maine express train at the Albion street crossing in Wakefield. The top of her car was ripped off as she crashed through the lowering guard-gates on the far side of the crossing.

Clairvoyance Put to Test

(Copyright, 1937)

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—Novel scientific experiments to decide whether foretelling the future is really possible have just been started at the laboratory of psychology, Duke University, Durham, N. C.

This was learned today in a communication from Prof. J. B. Rhine, who has published the full story of his researches in telepathy and clairvoyance in a new book, "New Frontiers of the Mind."

Already convinced that there is something in the human mind which transcends the limitations of distance, Dr. Rhine appears to lean to the belief that the mind is also beyond the limits of time.

"We feel that this problem of time, in relation to extra-sensory perception, may be the greatest question science has ever investigated. It may also prove the hardest to solve."

Fielding Resigns Post at Suffolk

Former Assistant Attorney-General Henry P. Fielding, for 16 years associated with Suffolk Law School, has resigned as lecturer on agency and criminal law, it was announced today by Dean Gleason L. Archer.

Press of private duties brought about his resignation, Fielding stated.

Secretary Ickes Voices His False Views

IN AN ADDRESS at Pittsburgh, as part of the sesquicentennial celebration of the signing of the Federal Constitution, Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, gave the country his opinions on the Supreme Court.

Mr. Ickes, as quoted by the Associated Press, regards the court as a "supergovernment."

He asserted that it has "usurped" the power "to pass upon the constitutionality of legislative acts."

Furthermore, in his expressed view, the Supreme Court actually tampers with the Constitution itself in upholding or denying the constitutionality of contested laws. Mr. Ickes put it this way:

"The Supreme Court, to all practical intents and purposes, is a continuing Constitutional Convention — changing, altering, nullifying and amending our basic law at its will."

They were all raised in public discussion BEFORE THE CONSTITUTION HAD BEEN RATIFIED BY THE STATES—and they were all answered AND REFUTED at that time by James Madison, the "Father of the Constitution," by Alexander Hamilton and by John Jay, first chief justice of the United States, in "The Federalist" papers.

FIRST—Is the Supreme Court a "supergovernment"?

By its very character, it cannot become that. The ESSENTIAL POWERS of supergovernment are beyond its reach.

The Supreme Court cannot ENACT laws. It cannot TAX or APPROPRIATE PUBLIC MONEY. AND it cannot exercise FORCE.

Alexander Hamilton put this argument to sleep 150 years ago when he wrote, in Paper No. 78 of "The Federalist":

"The Judiciary, from the nature of its functions, will always be the LEAST DANGEROUS to the political rights of the Constitution, because it will be LEAST in a capacity to annoy or injure them.

"The EXECUTIVE not only dispenses the honors, but HOLDS THE SWORD of the community.

"The LEGISLATURE not only COMMANDS THE PURSE, but PRESCRIBES THE RULES by which the duties and rights of EVERY CITIZEN are to be regulated.

"The JUDICIARY, on the contrary, HAS NO INFLUENCE over either the sword or the purse; NO DIRECTION either of the strength or of the wealth of the society; AND CAN TAKE NO ACTIVE RESOLUTION WHATEVER."

HAMILTON, in the same paper, also discussed and affirmed "the rights of the courts to pronounce legislative acts void, BECAUSE CONTRARY TO THE CONSTITUTION."

"NO LEGISLATIVE ACT, CONTRARY TO THE CONSTITUTION," wrote Hamilton, "CAN BE VALID."

Obviously, therefore, the argument that judicial review is an "usurped" power has no basis either in history or in law.

On the contrary, it is the CONSTITUTIONAL DUTY of the Supreme Court to pass on the constitutionality of laws, if the Constitution itself is to MEAN what it SAYS.

Equally obviously, the Supreme Court does not—as Secretary Ickes said—amend "the basic law AT ITS WILL."

It passes only on issues that are BROUGHT TO IT by those seeking justice.

A CONTESTED LAW may be invalidated, but THE CONSTITUTION remains exactly as it was until it is changed by the people.

IN fact, if the Supreme Court had no authority to decide in such cases whether or not the Constitution has been violated, not the court, but the CONGRESS or the EXECUTIVE, would become a "supergovernment," nullifying the Constitution "at its will."

It is unfortunate that Secretary Ickes has never acquired either a layman's or a legal education.

Mr. DeCelles Hears Facts

OFFICIALS representing hundreds of Massachusetts cities and towns are making it clear to Commissioner DeCelles that they do not like his compulsory insurance rates.

They ask why a Dorchester man must pay $53.70 for a policy while his Quincy neighbor who may own a more valuable car can get accident protection for $34.60.

They all seem to agree that their pleas to the Commissioner are more or less a waste of time; that their only hope is a statewide plea to the Legislature.

The protesting hundreds are probably right; Mr. DeCelles' rates will very likely stay at their sky-high level.

The real relief will come when all the motorists flock to Beacon Hill and, as a vast army, shout the fact that they have stood all the tax and insurance oppression they intend to stand.

Then, perhaps, the Commissioner will wake up to the fact that thousands of Massachusetts people will tolerate neither him nor his rates.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Why did Amelia Earhart throw her life away?

Why did a girl who had everything one could wish—youth and the zest for living, wealth, happiness, love—why did such a girl deliberately run risks and seek danger which brought her to death?

Elsie Robinson

So many of us asked those questions as we sat through those dreadful nights—listening—hoping—gradually surrendering in despair! And most of us could see no reasonable answer. For all her charm and gay gallantry, she seemed just another restless girl bent on adventure.

But there was another answer. Someone sent it to me today in the little poem I am about to quote, clipped from an unknown publication. And, flashing through the brave young words, I saw why Amelia Earhart had courted danger so openly.

She was not merely seeking excitement. She was searching for something infinitely harder to find and more perilous . . . something which could only be found through the doorway of terror.

Not the peace we gain by hiding or running away—dodging the risks—avoiding the challenges—playing safe.

But the peace that comes by conquering the weakness within ourselves . . . by flying above our own laziness, cowardice and ignoble carefulness. That's what she sought.

Amelia Earhart risked a terrible death because she wished to live an abundant life. And in these words she crowded her philosophy—

COURAGE!

The soul that knows it not, knows no release
From little things;
Nor mountain heights, where bitter joy hear
How can life grant us boon or living, compensate
For dull gray ugliness and pregnant hate,
Unless we dare
The soul's dominion? Each time we make a choice, we pay
With courage to behold resistless day

Amelia Earhart—1934.

Courage? You've thought perhaps that courage was something which a few fortunate folk were born with . . . as some are born with singing throats or the seed of genius. But no one is born brave. We are all born afraid. COURAGE IS ALWAYS A MATTER OF CHOICE.

Once I saw a picture of prehistoric man . . . a small, hunched, hairy creature, cowering in terror in the midst of a great plain, while from every side monsters advanced upon him, towering mastodons, creeping serpents, foul, flapping buzzards.

HELPLESS SAVAGES

That horrible picture might pass for all of us. Beneath our "civilized" exteriors we are all helpless savages, crouching before monsters. ONLY MONSTERS ARE WITHIN US, INSTEAD OF OUTSIDE US. They are the menace of our own weakness . . . of our hate and greed, our laziness and cowardice and conceit . . . of all the "little things" that keep us earth bound. Those things bound Amelia Earhart, too, but she rose above them. She longed for wings and stars—and she paid the price of them.

She could have crawled, in safety . . . BUT SHE CHOSE INSTEAD TO FLY.

It's the same old choice which comes to us all, sooner or later. You can be bound—OR FREE. You can crawl—OR FLY. You can play safe — OR GAMBLE GLORIOUSLY.

She gambled!

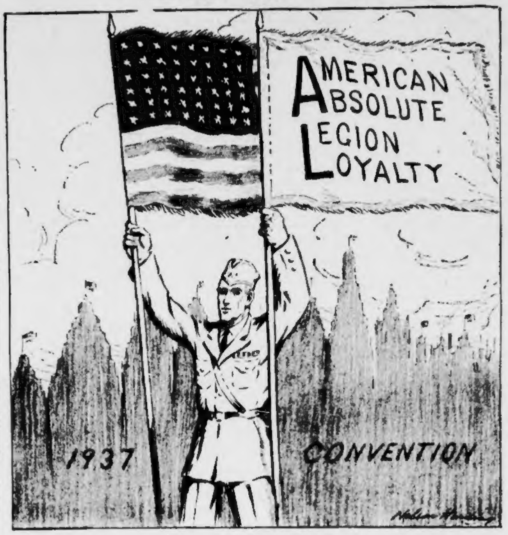
However it happened — SHE'S FREE!

AND I THINK IT WAS WORTH IT ALL!

Under True Colors



Cartoon by Nelson Harding

THE national convention of the American Legion, in New York City, commends itself to all patriotic Americans.

Every citizen should read the able address that Commander Harry W. Colmery delivered to the assembled thousands. Here, indeed, was a high standard of RIGHT THINKING.

He indorsed a plan for Legion posts throughout the nation to take local leadership in sponsoring and promoting study and understanding of the Constitution.

"Our paramount goal in Americanism," he said, "must be to arouse the American public again to an appreciation of the benefits and privileges they enjoy to an extent claimed by no other people, and awaken them to assume their duties and responsibilities as American citizens."

It is no surprise to find the American Legion and its leaders THINKING RIGHT about important matters.

But in these times it is important to have right thinkers SPEAK OUT LOUD in their advocacy of American principles.

Commander Colmery did that. So do his Legion buddies in Massachusetts, New England and elsewhere throughout the nation. They saved this country in war. They are determined to keep it safe in peace.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 22—They are called "subway fishermen," but their field is not confined to the subway gratings. Indeed, some of the choice fishing areas are in the neighborhood of large department stores. There are several hundred of these strange anglers in the middle section of the metropolis.

O. O. McIntyre

Subway fishing in the beginning was a diversion of the small boys—mostly tenement children who came over from the East Side with strings attached to iron bolts upon which were dabs of chewing gum to lower through gratings for dropped coins of passersby.

It became too profitable for child's play and now it has been taken over almost entirely by older men. They have naturally perfected the art and use a better grade of tools. Their strings are attached to real magnets and they scan the underground through a telescope.

And so on stomachs they stretch out and peer through the sidewalk gratings for many hours a day. They cannot work at night, but are up early for the day's catch. They not only pick up dropped coins, but rings and jewelry, and make a fair living.

Doodling: I have a friend who has found the perfect word to pencil on a telephone pad during a long conversation. It is minimum. And has so many quick strokes up and down that one can fill a pad page in a jiffy. Everyone has a favorite doodling word. Mine is Sandusky, second choice is Orlando.

A New Yorker does not have to go far from his city to find small town hospitality. Just the other day in George M. Cohan's 45-minutes-from-Broadway berg, New Rochelle, I had a topping Park avenue lunch for 50 cents—clean, palatable and excellently served.

And before I left a pleasant gentleman stopped by the table to say: "I hope you found things all right. We are a little upset today with some carpenter work."

I often wonder in passing through New Rochelle why that city has never reared some enduring monument to Clare Briggs, the cartoonist. He lived there for many years and it was there he built his famous home, "Blue Anchor," out of old ship timbers.

On the New Rochelle golf course he found many inspirations for his "When a Feller Needs a Friend."

A visit to the Briggs' home was one of the high adventures of formative days. The cartoonist was at the crest of his popularity and I went there with Briggs' long time friend of Chicago days, H. T. Webster.

It was New Year's Day and a great log fire was acrackle, with several sheep dogs snoozing on the big stone hearth. There was a butler in uniform and maids in white caps and aprons, with French accents. James Montague, the poet, and Will B. Johnstone were there. Also Ding, the cartoonist, and many more of the art world.

Briggs, genial and smiling, habited in a tweedy golf outfit, his jaws clamping a half dollar brand of cigar, stood out in my mind as the most successful man I had ever seen allied to my calling.

As an ardent student of nomenclature, I have always believed talent will make any name. Oliver Onion, for instance, has a big following in England as a serious writer. The Hollywood producer's slant on names I think is wrong.

Dorothy Lamour, to my mind, sounds phoney and I believe is a handicap. So is Anita Louise. And Simone Simon, I imagine, found her name her biggest stumbling block.

Most of us like Patsy Kelly, but we also like the across-the-track-sound to her name. ZaSu Pitts does all right, too.

I've always thought if I had a son I would name him Jack, Bill or Mike. If a girl Jane, Susie or Alice. My reactions to names and a study of them is not strange. I spent a boyhood trying to hide from the gang that my real name was Oscar Odd—and failed.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

IF the late John F. Shafroth, who, as United States Senator from Colorado, four times a Congressman and twice Governor of his State, earned and lived up to the name of "Honest John," is looking down upon this earth from the other world, he must be proud of his son—Morrison Shafroth—and Morrison's friend—Russell J. Ryan of Indianapolis.

For Morrison Shafroth and Ryan, confronted with the alternatives of giving up their posts as chief counsel and assistant chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau or carrying out a policy conscience told them was wrong, unhesitatingly handed in their resignations.

A statement by Shafroth reveals he and Ryan were forced to resign because they would not join in the Administration's campaign to "smear" a few rich taxpayers who were not accused of having violated any law.

Speaking for himself and his assistant, Shafroth said:

"Ryan and I were unable to convince ourselves that it was proper to use the Bureau of Internal Revenue as planned in the tax avoidance and evasion investigation. Being given the choice of participating in the presentation of the names or resigning, we tendered our resignations."

Shafroth and Ryan took seriously provisions in the law forbidding disclosures of details of a taxpayer's income. It may have occurred to them, as it has to others, that even a rich taxpayer who has not violated the tax laws is entitled to as much consideration as has been shown bootleggers, rum runners and moonshiners.

During prohibition, the Internal Revenue Bureau did not expose dry law violators who paid the required taxes upon their illegal profits. In those days, the contents of income tax returns were as closely guarded as the secrets of the confessional.

The courage and character shown by Shafroth and Ryan in giving up highly important positions and sacrificing opportunities for political preferment because they could not follow their party leader when his ideas of political expediency violated their understanding of what is right are most reassuring.

There is some talk of a move to impeach Supreme Court Justice Black. That would be punishing him for the sins of others. Those really to blame for the scandal growing out of the Black appointment are the President and the Senate.

The President is at fault for making the nomination without first finding out if there was anything in Black's associations that would make him unfit to act as a member of the nation's highest judicial tribunal.

And the Senate blundered in shutting its eyes and ears to charges that Black had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

If either the President or the Senate had made a thorough investigation, the chances are that Senator Black would not now be a member of the Supreme Court from which he can be removed only by impeachment or resignation.

Offers were made to produce evidence regarding Black's alleged connection with the Klan when the question of his confirmation was before the Senate.

But the Senate majority seemed to be more interested in living up to traditions of Senatorial courtesy than in getting the real low down on a Supreme Court nominee.

Scholars in Politics

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

In the 18th century Jules Tournon, a dealer in hides living in Paris, had to jump to Switzerland because the gendarmes had caught him offside in the Descartes-Newton squabble.

Edwin C. Hill

Voltaire was always engaged in a fast tierce and riposte over some purely intellectual issue, and he, too, had to make a swift getaway every once in a while, to Switzerland or to the sheltering court of his friend, Frederick the Great.

Ideas, just as such, were supremely important in those days of intellectual zest and contention. It is just as if Jim Farley had to make a quick dash to Canada because G. Edgar Hoover caught him in a heresy on the quantum theory.

Sir Richard Livingstone, president of Corpus Christi College, apparently would like to see this intellectual ferment revived in public officials and great industrialists. He tells the British Association for the Advancement of Science there ought to be a law by which our political and economic rulers would be sent to school every so often, under full pay.

Sir Richard is a classicist, and he believes that only by educating important men in the humanities, and keeping them educated, can we straighten out the general all-around world snarl of hatred and stupidity. He holds aloft the beacon light of Grecian culture and learning.

IT'S STILL A DREAM

Certainly, enlightenment promises more salvation than force, and soundly educated rulers and bosses are greatly to be desired. But the fact is that never in the world has Plato's dream been realized—never have philosophers been kings or have kings been philosophers; at least not for long. And even in those rare instances where intellect has been enthroned, the state has been something less than Utopian.

In our New Deal millennium, we have had many men just out of school, Phi Beta Kappas, most of them, and no need to send them back. It would seem to be an ideal setup for Sir Richard. But judging from the way it has worked out, Sir Richard got the cart before the horse.

Instead of sending the politicians to school, we ought to boot the professors out for a sabbatical year of rough-and-tumble ward politics every once in a while, if we feel that some kind of exchange professorship is necessary. Every man to his last. The scholar in politics may or may not be effective in government.

Tragic was the political decline of Woodrow Wilson—a brilliant scholar and an inept politician. He asked an untutored Southwestern Congressman why he didn't believe in the League of Nations. "I do," said the Congressman, "but I know it won't work."

There's the rub, when it comes to professors in government. They go wrong on what will or won't work. Sending them back to school wouldn't help any.

GUN RULE FUTILE

Currently, the Public Affairs Committee of New York City publishes a penetrating study showing the foolishness of the "have not" nations trying to shoot their way out.

They reveal, convincingly, that the salvation of these nations lies in trade and lowered tariff barriers, and in the production of useful goods instead of armaments.

Sweden, Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands have elaborately demonstrated all that, and thereby have become just about the two most civilized spots on the planet—with little poverty or crime, economic well-being and just and democratic governments.

In our class for dictators we would point out that here are four hard-boiled, rip-roaring fighting countries that finally swore off war and lived happily ever after. And they were "have not" countries, too. Their splendid craftsmen, their shrewd merchants, their wise statesmen, fed up on war, pulled them through.

Henry Thomas Buckle, great English historian, author of "The History of Civilization in England," maintained that a ruler might be an ignoramus but have a genius for government.

More significantly, perhaps, he insisted that even under a ruler who was both fat-headed and corrupt, there might be a great sweep of progress, as at certain times in Elizabethan England.

Furthermore, when the shining light of intellect was radiating from the throne, there might be a period of great degradation, as when Charles II came over from France and gave Spain an intellectual new deal—which didn't work.

WORTH READING

Buckle's drift seems to be that sound government is the measure of the general diffusion of zeal, energy, enterprise and intelligence among masses of people.

Anyone who wants to renew a waning faith in democracy will do well to read him. With an abundance of historical instances, he shows that a free people will maintain their freedom against both the pedants and tyrants, if they cherish and defend their free institutions.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

In Dublin, the other day, events—and time—marched backward.

Irishmen invaded the "Irish Independent" and wrecked it because the paper was about to print an article saying that Wolfe Tone, who was sentenced to be hanged by an English court in 1798 but who cut his throat with a penknife, was a traitor to Ireland.

Tone was one of the most romantic figures in revolutionary history. He was a disciple of the French revolutionists and the doctrines of Thomas Paine. He twice had the French Directory equip an expedition to invade Ireland to free that country of English rule, but failed each time.

He would no doubt "Hooru! Hooru!" with all the powers of his larynx if he knew that 139 years after his suicide his political descendants were still slugging in his name.

The Daily Worker, of New York ("Central Organ, Communist Party, U. S. A., section of Communist International," as it calls itself), on Constitution Day, September 17, printed on the first page the Bill of Rights, three pages of articles praising the Constitution and pictures of Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Paine and Lincoln.

These painted masks of great Americans which cover the faces of Marx, Lenin and Stalin, have been executed by order of Georges Dimitroff, head of the world-plotting Moscow Comintern, one of whose eventual aims is the complete destruction of our Bill of Rights and the substitution of the faces of Marx, Lenin and Stalin for those of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln on our postage stamps.

It's the new Communist strategy: "If you can't like 'em, join 'em!"—and BORE, BORE, BORE.

This question is asked by Lewis W. Waters of the General Foods Corporation, in a statement made before the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mr. Waters blamed the world's current war jitters on faulty diet.

But an inquiry into the dietary habits of the famous men of the world yields very little light on the relation of food to temperament.

Julius Caesar, soldier and dictator, was a barley-water addict, almost an ascetic. Alexander the Great, ruthless conqueror, on the other hand, was a drunkard and a glutton. When Peter the Great "got up from a good meal" he put on torture-shows for his guests. Marcus Aurelius, one of the most humane of the Roman emperors, was a poor eater and seldom drank. Certainly Napoleon was a good eater and a brandy drinker de luxe, but he was pretty much the same ruthless egotist whether before or after meals.

A good meal never made a born tyrant benevolent for long. But a good meal is a splendid technique if you are finagling a business deal. Don't hammer your man before lunch or dinner—AND DON'T LET HIM PAY THE CHECK.

The great pleasure that George Bernard Shaw has always given the world has been mainly rooted in the tickle it gets out of cudgelling its brains as whether Bernard is kidding the world, kidding himself or whether he means every word he says. My theory about Shaw is that he is a superb actor and that the real Shaw, if any, has never yet been unearthed even by Shaw himself.

The other day he announced that he is now in favor of a subsidized national British theater. Shaw used to be a Socialist. Now he plays with Fascism. Tomorrow he may be writing a play lauding Thomas Jefferson. And next year he may be boosting Mustapha Kemal or Aaron Burr.

He still believes that he and Shakespeare are the greatest dramatists and that all wars are caused by capitalists.

Maybe Shaw summed himself up best when he said:

The Nazis, the Communists and the Fascists of Europe call on their peoples to "sacrifice butter for guns," to "hunger themselves into greatness," to "tighten your belt and cheer for Stalin," to "eat little, drink little and concentrate on national glory."

These are only variations on Marie Antoinette's invitation to the French peope to eat cake if they hadn't any bread.

The stomachs of peoples of Russia, Germany and Italy are not quite empty yet, but when they are, if history is any guide they will refuse to eat Stalin's five-year blueprints, Hitler's weltanschauung (world-view) or Mussolini's "ten million gleaming bayonets."
